Mrs. Hoover's Guest.
New York Heat.
Wee Willie's Name.
Charity Is Cold.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

INVITING all the wives of congressmen, as custom orders, Mrs. Hoover invited, among others, the Negro wife of a Negro congressman, Mrs. De Priest, to have tea in the White House.

SENATOR BLEASE is not to be congratulated on his reference to the incident.

He should remember that Mrs. Hoover had arranged a series of teas at the White House, which is public property, for "the wives of all congressmen."

Deliberately to strike from her list, one woman whose husband is a member of Congress because she happened to be of African descent, would have been to show contempt for the Constitution of the United States.

MRS. HOOVER leaves that to bootleggers and their "respectable" customers. She is to be congratulated upon the fact that she does so.

SEVEN consecutive days of heat in New York City have killed eight, including one policeman, who died on duty.

Ninety degrees, plus great humidity, is dangerous temperature in New York.

One hundred and fifteen degrees in the dry air of the Mojave Desert, 2,500 feet above the Pacific, is not disagreeable.

For absolutely ideal weather at this time of year, and to see what is perhaps the most beautiful part of America, take a train to Seattle and the Northwest. Remember that all of the Pacific coast is a summer resort.

A GANGSTER or racketeer killing in these days is nothing to write much about. But what do you think of the name, "Wee Willie Doody" for a gunman and mail robber?

That name interests the police in connection with the killing of a druggist.

Names like "Scarface Al Capone" you can understand.

But what did the gunman do to be called "Wee Willie?"

TO SAY charity is cold puts it mildly. It is too late to ask the opinion of John Nelson, recently inmate of a "home for old folks." He was 70 years old, too young, he said, to be a pauper and live on charity, so he ran away.

HE HAD enough money to pay for a cheap room in a hotel, but none left over to pay for food. He lived a free man as long as he could. Yesterday, standing in front of a delicatessen store, looking at the food, he fell in a faint and died. The doctor said, "starvation." The police said, "starvation and pride."

At all events, John Nelson is out of the home for old folks now, permanently.

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S task is not easy. People along the Canada border telegraph and write, "Won't you please stop the shooting." According to schedule, yesterday, he was to receive the "National Loyalty Commission" of the Presbyterian Church urging enforcement of prohibition.

IN NEW YORK a distinguished bootlegger on trial summoned some of his best customers as witnesses. Respectable bankers and manufacturers testified that they did busines with the bootlegger and "found his goods always excellent."

The law is not taken seriously by those that do not choose to take it so.

WE ARE "pushing quickly" to a discussion of reduction of armaments and especially reduction of sea power.

Great Britain, Japan and the United States will have the first discussion.

AMERICAN patriots will cross their fingers, remembering the last disarmament conference in Washington, when this country scrapped hundreds of millions in real battleships, some partly finished, while Britain, with a magnificent gesture, burned interesting, but not expensive blueprints of ships that might be built, some day, perhaps.

RENE LACOSTE, French, best tennis player in the world, who recently beat the American, Tilden, surprises those that know nothing about Frenchmen.

He wins because of his steady DETERMINATION. He never tires, doesn't get excited, and WINS.

CONSIDER the amazing fact that all his life he has drunk French red wine, diluted with water. The French have been brought up for centuries on light wine and wheat bread.

Young gentlemen in this country will bear in mind that Rene Lacoste never over-stimulated his heart with cocktails or poisoned himself with gin or whisky.

YOUNG gentlemen with their diplomas, from many universities, will be soon waiting for the world to answer the question, "What Have You to Offer?

The world will answer, "Experience and plenty of it."

GRADUATES will find that their real education begins NOW. Some of them, convinced that they already amount to something, will get nothing.

College education FORMS youth, when it does not DEFORM it, as the French proverb says of travel.

MELLON TO GET SON SETTLED

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 20.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, of Pittsburgh, will probably forego his usual custom of taking a vacation abroad during the summer and instead will spend most of the time between Pittsburgh and Washington in an effort to establish his son, Paul Mellon, in some regular business.

Young Mellon recently graduated from Yale.

Acknowledgement of the Secretary's plans was made at the Treasury Department today. Last summer he went on a Mediterranean cruise.

It was stated Mr. Mellon expected to make frequent trips to Pittsburgh now that Congress has recessed.

While nothing definite has been outlined for young Mellon, his father anticipates that he will establish himself at Pittsburgh in preparation for the time when he will be called upon to take over a part of the Mellon interests, representing one of the greatest fortunes in the world.

Due to his editorial experience in connection with one of the Yale publications, it was suggested that young Mellon might take up newspaper work, but the Secretary was unprepared to say to what extent.

MOVIE STAR ROBBED OF $75,000

Valet Arrested as Cash And Bonds Are Stolen From Cowboy Hero

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., June 20.—(INS.)—Tom Mix, the cowboy movie star and circus performer, has been robbed of $75,000.

This became known today when City Marshal George H. Ducker and Patrolman Dennis Kelley arrested Cal Frybendahl, 33, a native of Denmark and valet for Mix.

ARREST SPECTACULAR

The arrest of Frybendahl was made in a spectacular manner. The circus train, to which the private car of Mix was attached, was halted in the railroad yards as it was pulling out for Concord.

Frybendahl protested his innocence. He was taken to police headquarters and booked as a suspicious person.

CASH AND BONDS

The missing property, Mix told police, was kept in a specially made bag to fit in a box under the berth of Mix in his private car. The missing bag contained, police announced, the following: $35,000 worth of credit slips, $4,000 worth of bankers' checks, $25,000 in Liberty bonds, $8,000 in other bonds, $7,100 in cash and several real estate deeds.

Mix told police that $6,500 in jewelry, also in the box beneath the berth, had been overlooked.

BOARD TO STUDY CITY'S MOVIE PROJECT

First Free Program Will Be Held in Parks July 14, If Council Approves Idea

Mayor Charles H. Kline today appointed a committee of motion picture men to assist in carrying out his plan for free movies in the parks on Sunday nights.

The Mayor in launching the plan a few weeks ago announced that he wanted to afford additional amusement in the parks for people with limited financial means that would compare with Sunday night entertainment in clubs available to well-to-do citizens.

The Mayor's committee will study the park situation and make recommendations as to the selection of pictures, length of program and the cost of the proposal.

When the committee reports its findings Mayor Kline intends to forward the complete plan to Council for its consideration.

The committee includes Ace Berry, of the Stanley Theater; E. L. Connelly and John Harris, of the Harris Amusement Company; Bert Stearn, of United Artists; Edward Morton, of the National Theater Supply Company; Arthur Verone, of the Superior Supply Company, and Benjamin Brown, of the Motion Pictures Operators nion.

The mayor has tentatively selected Schenley, Highland, McKinley and West parks for the inauguration of the Sunday movies and expects to have the first performance, with Council's concurrence, July 14. The Mayor pointed out that such a plan would permit shows on eight subsequent Sundays before Labor Day.

Under Fire

DR. JAMES H. SNOOK

Dr. Snook, former Ohio State University professor, undergoing a severe grilling by Columbus police in the slaying of Theora Hix.

THEORA HIX

Miss Hix, 24, Florida co-ed who had reached the second year of her medical school course, found brutally slain on a rifle range.

POLICE GRILL PROFESSOR 22 HOURS

Tired, Shaken by Wife's Story, Admits He Saw Victim Night of Crime

COLUMBUS, O., June 20.—During 22 hours of almost uninterrupted grilling, Dr. James H. Snook, 40, who has been held for investigation in connection with the murder of Theora Hix, 25-year-old Ohio State University co-ed, has admitted, according to Chief of Police Harry E. French, that he had been with Miss Hix the night of her slaying, and that he burned some of her clothes two days later.

The grilling of Snook started at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Save for an hour this morning it continued until 1 p. m. today. The probers, seven of them, worked in relays. It was the most gruelling third degree in police annals here.

DOCTOR'S CALM BREAKS

Snook maintained a remarkable calmness until 3 o'clock this morning. Then he became nervous and, according to Chief of Detectives W. J. Shellenbarger, contradicted himself.

Mrs. Snook, wife of the former Ohio State University professor, was questioned by authorities Tuesday. Discrepancies between the information she gave and the statements of her husband are believed to have caused Snook to become muddled in his answers this morning.

Widespread reports that Dr. Snook had confessed to the slaying were denied by John F. Seidel, attorney for Snook.

Seidel declared authorities had told him Snook had confessed, but the prisoner himself had told him he had not admitted the slaying.

PRISONER TIRED

"Why he's in such shape he can't pronounce his words plainly," Seidel said.

The body of Miss Hix was found among the weeds of a rifle range on the outskirts of the city June 14. The girl had been beaten and slashed to her death the previous night.

Until his admission early today, Dr. Snook, who had admitted sharing a one room apartment with

BULLETIN.

Mrs. Mary Barr was acquitted by a jury in Criminal Court today of the murder of her husband, Harry Barr, street car motorman, after deliberating one hour.

In a quiet, firm voice, without trace of emotion, a plainly-dressed little woman of 48 denied on the witness stand in Criminal Court today that she had slain her husband with whom she had lived for 25 years.

"He must have done it, I know I didn't. I never shot a gun in my life," calmly testified Mrs. Mary Barr, of 13 Wood street, Braddock, in her trial charged with the murder of her husband, Harry Barr, 52, a street car motorman, May 23. He died in the Braddock General Hospital 12 hours after he had been shot four times in their home.

HUSBAND AMUCK

Mrs. Barr, in her own defense, testified that her husband came home intoxicated the evening before. He demanded his supper at once. As she was preparing it, he went to his room and fell asleep, she testified.

"About 1:30 o'clock in the morning," testified the widow, "I heard a noise as of shooting. Harry appeared at the door of the room where Hazel, our adopted daugh-

HEFLIN DENIES DOPE CHARGE

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(INS.)—J. Thomas Heflin, Jr., 28, son of the famous senator from Alabama, pleaded not guilty today when arraigned in Police Court on a charge of driving his automobile down Pennsylvania avenue while under the influence of drugs. He also demanded a jury trial.

The "drug thing" was all a subterfuge, young Heflin said, to conceal the fact from the police that he had been drinking. He was arrested after crashing his car into the rear end of a laundry truck.

"Young Tom" chatted affably with reporters around the Police Court while waiting for his case to be called.

"I don't care how long a piece you write about me," he said, "if you'll tell me where I can get a drink."

"Shut up," said his father's secretary, J. L. Thornton, who, in the absence of the Senator, is looking after the son.

"Aw, don't mind him," said Heflin.

"Does your father know about this yet?" he was asked.

"God, no," he replied, "that'll be bad enough when he does. There's no use trying to hasten it."

The elder Heflin, a pronounced prohibitionist, is reported to be in Toledo, O.

"Young Tom" said he was going to climb back on the wagon as soon as "I can taper off."

Moon Township Opens War on Metro Plan

Vigorous opposition to the Metropolitan district plan has developed in Moon Township. Placards denouncing the scheme as "forcible annexation," and telling the voters "not to let the politicians fool them" were posted throughout the township last night. They are signed "The Moon Township Committee Against Annexation."

HEAT RELIEF ON WAY, FORECAST

Relief from the heat wave, which for two days has gripped the entire East, was promised by the Weather Bureau today when a forecast of "cloudy" was given out. The condition will prevent the thermometer from going much above 85 degrees, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said.

Yesterday's record was 90 degrees, two below the day before. Shortly after 5 p. m. thunder storm conditions in the East created cool surface winds and the mercury dropped 10 degrees, from 82 to 72, continuing a gradual decline during the night. The city's share of the rain was a light drizzle about 11 p. m.

If relief from the weather does not come today, half sessions may be observed in some of the city schools, Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of public schools, intimated last night.

CROWD OUT TO SEE 'WE'

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., June 20.—(INS.)—An unusually large crowd appeared here today in the hope of catching a glimpse of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride, the former Anne Morrow.

The Flying Colonel is acting as one of the judges in the Daniel Guggenheim fund safe aircraft competition being held here. He thrilled spectators at the field yesterday by taking his bride aloft for a short pleasure flight.

Before testing if the first entrant yesterday the Lindberghs drove up to the hangar in the colonel's car, sunburned from three weeks on their honeymoon yacht, and became at once the center of all interest. They posed for news pictures together and then with a group of officials of the Guggenheim Fund, and later the colonel told reporters something about the safety competition.

Col. Lindbergh took up the first entry in the safety competition for a trial flight, with Harry Guggenheim, president of the fund, as passenger. His only preparation for the flight, the first since his marriage, was to cast aside his blue serge coat and don a helmet and parachute.

After a short spin in the air, during which he did no stunting, he landed and almost at once took Mrs. Lindbergh up for a ride in a fast Army biplane. They stayed in the air about 10 minutes, circling high about the Long Island fields.

A few hours later three of them had been recaptured, two of them after they had been shot by a cattleman living in the vicinity of the farm.

BENNETT STORE BRINGS $70,000

The bankrupt J. G. Bennett Company store at Fifth avenue and Wood street was sold at public auction today for $70,100 to the Schloss Brothers, Inc., of Baltimore, Md. The sale does not include the building itself, nor the ground.

This is the second time in a month the store has been sold. In May Charles E. Baker purchased it at auction for $100,000, but refused to carry out the deal, Bankruptcy Referee Watson B. Adair said. Adair announced today that he would charge Baker with the difference in the two prices—$30,100.

The buyers were represented by Attorney George D. Wick, director.

Records in $3,000,000 Estate Still Missing

The court records in the Eleanor H. Davidson $3,000,000 estate are still missing from the office of Prothonotary John Vogt. Since the discovery that the records have mysteriously disappeared, investigation of the prothonotary's records show that the only permanent records of the case are the auditor's report and the "first and final accounting of Frank M. Wallace," filed October 7, 1921.

No apparent official inquiry concerning the missing records has been instigated.

President Judge John A. Evans, of Common Pleas Court, when asked if the court intended to concern itself with the missing records replied, "The matter has not been brought to the court's attention officially, and it does not act on rumors. Furthermore, the papers were supposed to be in the custody of the prothonotary, who is an elected officer, and therefore responsible."

FULL REPORT ASKED BY STIMSON

Secretary Demands Information on Detroit River Shooting and Escape

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Secretary of State Stimson has asked the Treasury Department to give him a full report on the firing on a customs patrol boat on the Detroit River by rum smugglers.

Secretary Stimson did not indicate what disposition would be made by the state department of the report on the shooting nor did he disclose whether the American government would make any inquiry of Canada concerning the incident.

LOWMAN ACTS

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman later telephoned the Detroit office and asked for an immediate report. He said that as soon as the report had been received and studied it would be transmitted to the state department.

The assistant secretary said that this was not the first time that rum runners had opened fire on cutosms boats and that it had happened frequently in the past with the aggressor escaping into Canadian waters.

It was pointed out at the State Department that Canada at the Ottawa conference indicated a willingness to prevent the smuggling of liquor into the United States, but refused to make the export of liquor from the Dominion into this country illegal.

Meanwhile State Department officials declared no definite decision had been reached in connection with the selection of an arbitrator for this country in the case of the Canadian craft I'm Alone, a rum runner fired upon by an American coast guard cutter in the Gulf of Mexico.

It was indicated that the negotiations between the two governments in regard to the I'm Alone were progerssing satisfactorily and an American arbitrator would be selected probably in the near fture.

The animal's head was sent to Harrisburg to be examined. The Bennett girl was under medical care today.

FILM CASHIER FOILS FAKE

Miss Mary Starr, cashier at the Ritz Theater, in downtown Fifth avenue, told in Central Police Court today how she had frustrated an attempt to palm off a fake $10 bill at the box office.

Miss Starr identified Charles Davis, 23, of 503 Union avenue, as the man who handed her a $1 bill, which had been clumsily raised to $10 by pasting a zero alongside the figure one.

Miss Starr beckoned a nearby policeman, Davis was arrested and, detectives said, implicated Thomas J. Long, 28, of 1208 Ohio street, and Stephen F. Bartlick, 30, of 14 East Erie street.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones turned the three men over to government authorities.

MEYER U. S. JOB STILL OPEN

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The vacancy left at Pittsburgh by the resignation of United States Attorney John D. Meyer probably will not be filled until after Congress reconvenes in the fall, it was learned today. It was the understanding here that United States Senator David A. Reed would not take up the matter of the appointment until after the recess.

Owing to pressure brought by friends of several active candidates and demands made on his time by hearings on the new tariff bill, the Pittsburgh Senator has not found an opportunity to discuss the vacancy with department officials.

The feeling here still is that Louis Graham, legal adviser to Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington at Pittsburgh, will obtain the post, in keeping with earlier reports.

While Senator Reed has stated that he was keeping an open mind on the appointment, friends of Graham are believed to hold the upper hand.

United States Attorney John D. Meyer's resignation was presented to become effective July 1, or as soon afterwards as possible. This was understood to mean that he would retain his office until a successor had been appointed.

VETS TREAD OLD BATTLEFIELD

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—With faltering step, but heads held high, 200 survivors of that furious engagement of nearly 66 years ago on the famous "wheatfield" of the Gettysburg battlefield marched in proud review last night over that same ground.

The march was held late because of the excessive heat. A number of the paraders wore full uniforms while others were garbed in "civvies." Most all the bent, gray-haireds carried the little blue caps which were regulation equipment of the Union Army in the Civil War. In the reviewing stand were the new and retiring commanders of the Pennsylvania department, Grand Army of the Republic, Philip Engelskirger, of Franklin, and George I. Rudolph, of Pittsburgh, respectively.

After the review the veterans in turn reviewed the Sons of Veterans and then the whole assemblage of the six affiliated organizations, with the G. A. R., went to a theater. They were addressed by Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James.

Boy Drowns Two Hours After Vacation Begins

Summer vacation began and ended within two hours in death today for Walter Katulski, 7, of 69 Steuben street.

The lad was drowned in the Ohio River near the site of the Glory Barn, West End, while celebrating the close of classes at the Guardian Angel Polish Catholic School, Steuben street.

He went with a score of boys to a swimming pool, witnesses told police. While wading he stepped into a deep hole. His companions made a frantic but futile attempt to rescue him. Later his body was recovered by William Coleridge, 22, of 205 Willard street, Crafton, who tied a rope around his waist and dove into the pool.

"I had warned Frank not to go to that pool with the larger boys," sobbed the lad's mother, Mrs. Mary Katulski, "He had been punished several times for doing so."

The Premier made the trip in a Royal Air Force bomber, disregarding numerous messages from all over England urging him to choose a safer method of travel than an airplane.

DEATH THREATS HURLED IN HOLDUPS

'I'll Blow Your Head Off,' Bandit's Menace as He Robs Bloomfield Store

Two Atlantic and Pacific chain stores in the Bloomfield district, and a Greenfield district P. H. Butler store were robbed today, apparently by the same holdup men. The loot was $172.

In the store at 4927 Penn avenue, Mrs. Sarah Nardin, of 209 South Millvale avenue, was purchasing groceries from a clerk, Cella Johnson, of 5530 Graham place, when a tall man entered.

BANDIT'S THREAT

"Get into that back room, or I'll blow your head off," the man announced, showing a pistol.

The women complied, and the bandit, turning to the till, saw the manager, W. E. Kayes, of 1275 Franklin street, Wilkinsburg, behind a pile of canned goods. He covered Kayes and took $25 from the till.

"Now, where's the rest of it? Come on. Hand it over, or it's curtains for you," the bandit told Kayes.

Kayes handed him a bag containing $75, and the bandit ran to the street and disappeared.

At 3702 Penn avenue, two men held up John Thomas, of 5200 Carnegie street, store manager, and robbed him of $21.

DESCRIPTIONS TALLY

Thomas' description of one of these men tallied with Kayes' description of the bandit who robbed him.

In the P. H. Butler Company store, 1100 Greenfield avenue, two men held up Thomas Mullen, clerk, and A. G. Miller, a butcher. They took $36 from Mullen and $15 from the cash register. Then they forced Mullen and Miller to lie on the floor and fled. Mullen, springing up, saw them enter a green sedan parked at the door and drive away.

Mullen's description of the bandits tallied with descriptions in the Bloomfield holdups.

ASK TOWN HALL ON NORTH SIDE

The location of the town hall on the Osterling site, River avenue and Anderson street, North Side, was discussed yesterday by members of the County Planning Commission. F. J. The next hearing on the town hall site will be held July 17, when the commission will listen to petitioners for the Liberty avenue and Grant street site and the Schenley Park sites. Hearings for the downtown sites will be held July 24.

the girl, had steadfastly maintained that he last saw his sweetheart on June 12.

The early questioning took place at the city jail, after which Snook was returned to his cell at the county jail.

Shellenbarger said Snook has admitted he got a key from the keyring of Miss Hix, at the spot where her body was found. The key was to the room which they shared jointly and which Snook surrendered to the landlady shortly before the girl's body was identified.

Shellenbarger also said Snook admitted that a vanity case found in the furnace of his home belonged to the slain co-ed. He had previously admitted burning two pairs of the girl's pajamas, and her slippers. He explained that the wearing apparel had been left by her in the apartment rendezvous and that he desired to destroy it after he had learned she was dead.

SLEUTH TELLS OF QUIZ

Shellenbarger said such a report was made to him by Detective Otto Phillips, who was in the room with County Prosecutor John J. Chester where Dr. Snook was questioned.

Phillips said he was questioning Dr. Snook about the key which was missing from the ring, Dr. Snook, he said, replied that he had gotten the key from the girl Wednesday and returned it to her Thursday.

Then Phillips asked: "Where did you get that key before you turned it in Friday?"

Phillips quoted Dr. Snook as saying: "You know where I got it."

Shortly after noon today the questioners called in Detective Otto Phillips.

Phillips announced that he asked the former professor:

"Why did you kill the girl?"

Snook replied he had been advised "not to talk."

Phillips declared he repeated his question and that Snook answered:

"She had been begging me for cocaine. Wait until it comes out."

"At the body?" Phillips asked, and he quoted the professor as answering "yes."

Phillips said the questioning was dropped there and Snook was taken back to jail.

A dramatic scene was enacted in police headquarters when Melvin T. Hix, of Bradenton, Fla., aged father of the murdered girl, was ushered into a room where Dr. Snook sat alone. Without speaking, they stared at each other for several minutes.

Finally Snook was taken into another room for more grilling by Prosecutor Chester and his assistants and detectives.

Dr. Snook today was the only prisoner held in connection with the crime.

Marion T. Meyers, young university faculty member who confessed he shared with Dr. Snook the affections of Miss Hix, was freed by police yesterday, although Prosecutor Chester said he was convinced that Meyers had not told all he knew regarding Miss Hix's death.

Meyers has been asked to resign from the university because of his admitted relations with Miss Hix.

Dr. Snook, a husband and father, has been dismissed from the institution for "moral delinquencies." He was a professor of veterinary medicine.

ter, her baby and I were sleeping. He had a revolver.

"'I've got you now,' he said," Mrs. Barr testified.

Mrs. Barr and her daughter ran downstairs to the apartment of Michael Conley and remained there for the rest of the night, she said. When she went upstairs to get her daughter's baby at daybreak, she found a revolver on the floor, which she carried downstairs.

Asked why she didn't call a physician before 9 a. m., after she had suspected her husband had been shot, the witness testified she didn't think he was badly hurt.

NEIGHBOR TESTIFIES

Mrs. Anna McKenna, a neighbor, testified that Barr had been drinking heavily since New Year's. Ten days before the fatal shooting he stopped in front of her house and said he was going to shoot a little dog at his house that barked too loud.

"Then he pointed at his head," testified Mr. McKenna, and said "'Boom, boom, boom!' They won't give me a car that I want. I won't run a one-man car and I'm tired of life."

The case likely will reach the jury late today. The commonwealth yesterday introduced testimony of physicians that Barr had accused his wife of shooting him.

HOOVER HITS HARD ROAD IN SENATE

First Congress Gives Him Makeshift Farm Bill and Leaves Tariff in Doubt

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover has had his first experience in dealing with Congress and found the going anything but easy during the first part of the special session he called to enact farm relief and tariff revision legislation.

After much maneuvering and an open controversy with the Senate, he got about the sort of farm aid measure he wanted, but just how close the tariff bill will come to his views remains for the future. The measure passed by the House is regarded by some of his friends as not being in accord with his ideas of either limited or necessary revision.

INDEPENDENTS ACTIVE

Although Republican majorities in both houses were increased in the election which swept Mr. Hoover into the presidency, he found a situation on Capitol Hill very similar to that faced by his predecessor, with the Republican independents of the Senate able to wield the balance of power as between the regular Republicans and the Democrats.

Early in the session it was found that the independents and the Democrats were standing together for the export debenture plan of farm relief which the President denounced as dangerous to agriculture, but the big surprise to many came when both Senator Borah, of Idaho, and Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, came out for the debenture proposal.

These two senators were prominent in the campaign, stumping the agricultural West in behalf of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party platform, which the President holds is interpreted in the administration farm relief measure.

As some political observers here concluded, the chief executive was obliged to look to the House for the bill he wanted, and at his suggestion it finally permitted the debenture plan to come to a vote there, despite the possibility of political embarrassment to some of the Western representatives standing with the administration, and it was overwhelmingly rejected.

SILENT ON TARIFF

President Hoover has made no public expression regarding the House tariff bill other than to refer inquirers to his message to Congress at the opening of the session. In that he urged a limited revision in the industrial schedules to meet changed conditions since the present law was enacted and a general revision of agricultural rates.

The House received and passed a general revision bill, with changes in duties affecting hundreds of commodities. The Senate declined by the margin of a single vote to limit the Finance Committee in its work to agricultural and related schedules.

Besides the farm bill, the President obtained one other measure which he desired, providing for reapportionment of the House and the taking of the next census, but was blocked in the Senate in his effort to postpone the coming into force of the national origins quota provisions of the immigration act and it will automatically become operative July 1.

WOMAN BURNED, HUSBAND HELD

Victim Saved by Neighbors; Delay of Meal Said to Have Made Mate Angry

By ALBERT GOUGH.
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., June 20.—While Mrs. Nellie Bradley, 22, hovered between life and death from burns over half of her body, authorities here today were conducting an inquiry to determine whether kerosene found upon her clothing had been spilled by herself or thrown upon her.

Prosecutor W. W. Ingram was holding the woman's husband, Harry Porter Bradley, 42, "to await the outcome of her injuries." No formal charge had been made against Bradley.

One theory of the motive is that the husband became angry when the woman was late preparing his meal.

With her clothing aflame, Mrs. Bradley was found in the kitchen of her home Saturday by neighbors who had heard her screaming. Her husband, Ingram said he had been told, was standing by inactive.

When Mrs. Bradley's condition became critical yesterday, her husband was taken into custody. Ingram hinted he probably would ask for a sanity commission to examine Bradley.

The prosecutor said he had found kerosene on unburned portions of the woman's dress. He believed this might have been spilled while she was starting a fire in her kitchen stove.

Shopkeeper Fires From Window, Wounds Thief

Joseph Koubek was awakened in his home at 1302 Columbus avenue by the ringing of the burglar alarm in his adjoining tailor shop early today.

Large windows enable Koubek to see from his bedroom into the shop. He saw a tall, husky burglar rifling the cash register, which held only small change.

Koubek fired two shots through the window. The man fled. Koubek believes one shot found its mark, for he saw the thief limping to an auto in which a confederate sat.

The burglars gained entrance by placing a plank against the front door and backing the auto into the plank, which forced the door.

AVALON PLANS FOR FOURTH

Avalon's plans for a rousing Fourth of July celebration will be completed at a meeting of the various committees tonight in the borough hall.

Solicitors have been making a house-to-house canvass this week, under the direction of William A. Caddick, chairman of the finance committee. The report of the committee will determine the extent of the fireworks feature, hitherto elaborate.

No formal invitation will be tendered to residents of Bellevue, whose celebration was called off following a controversy between the board of trade and the school board over use of the high school athletic field, but all citizens of the North Boroughs will be welcome, G. F. H. Dobler, general chairman of the Avalon celebration, said today.

Athletic events, band concert and vaudeville will be held the afternoon of Independence Day in the natural amphitheater constituting the Avalon school athletic field, followed by fireworks.

Mrs. Foster asserted she was forced to leave her husband because he accused her of various misconducts. Each accused the other of participating in drinking parties.

Silence in Court Paramount to Public Safety

"Get out of here!" Staley told McClelland.

"You can't do it in my court," said Staley, and for three hours McClelland didn't under threat of arrest.

Meanwhile, certain plugs being out, the Homewood signal system was cut off from the station.

KLINE APPROVES STREET PLAN

Mayor Charles H. Kline today signed an ordinance authorizing the widening of West General Robinson street from Federal street to Scotland street at a cost of about $250,000. The street will be widened to 70 feet.

The Mayor had withheld his signature since June 10 when the ordinance was passed finally by Council. He explained that he had seen newspaper stories of opposition to the widening and wanted to give the objectors a hearing if one were requested. None was.

The widening was proposed by promoters of a large warehouse who wanted a Robinson street location but would not consider building on the present width of the street. They tried to get an 80-foot street, but accepted the 70-foot width.

The widening was also opposed by the City Planning Commission and by Frederick Bigger, of the Citizens' Committee on City Plan, on the ground that the project would block a proposed industrial thoroughfare between the Sixteenth Street Bridge and the contemplated West End-Woods Run Bridge over the Ohio River.

Council granted a hearing to the objectors and assured them that the Robinson street improvement would not conflict with any future developments in the neighborhood.

35,000 WITNESS PAGEANT BY CHILDREN

Health Movement in Schools Illustrated by Colorful Picture at Forbes Field

The children of Pittsburgh are in distress. Neglected, they are stalked by ill health. They are crippled and lamed and in sorrow. But Humanity, the Pied Piper of Pittsburgh, blows his pipe and calls them. They answer him. Civilization and Progress look on. They decide to help. Love and Beauty and Happiness join the throng. Father Pitt sees the gamut of history pass by. He sees Hope and Education lend their aid.

Thus, by symbol, by color, by movement, by life, 8,000 children representing practically every public school in the district yesterday in Forbes Field illustrated the health movement in this city, with 35,000 looking on from the huge ball park's grandstands.

COLORFULLY COSTUMED

The children, ranging from 5 to 15 years, from the first to the highest grade, were colorfully costumed. They were trained in drills, gymnastics, dances and ensembles.

The spirit of health, happiness, play, exercise, adventure, co-operation and beauty represented the first seven episodes—the Going of the Piper. Following an intermission, high school students presented the spirits of sportsmanship, discipline, competition, grace and America. In all the pageant comprised 12 movements. It was written by Miss Blanche Haines McCann, and produced by the department of hygiene under the direction of Dr. Harry B. Burns, director.

DAVIDSON SPEAKS

The festival, perhaps the greatest in the history of the schools here, followed a brief address of welcome by Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent of schools. The principal roles were played by W. D. McCoy, as Father Pitt; Miss Mary Welker, Progress; Miss Elizabeth Bell, Civilization; R. H. Edgar, The Piper; Miss Alleyne Schnable, Hope; Miss Dorothy Scheib, Education, and Miss Viola Broskey, the Herald.

The throng swamped the Oakland district, beginning to gather shortly after noon. The pageant, depicting the history of health in this community, lasted more than two hours.

One of the most striking scenes was the finale, the Spirit of America, where costumed national groups danced the folk dances of European countries, with all joining in the last — The American. The Schenley High School orchestra, directed by Charles Eiseman, furnished the music.

MURDER WIDOW ASK $6,300

An action brought in the Common Pleas Court of Cambria County by Mrs. Nell S. Cupp, [illegible] ger street, Johnstown, Pa., s[illegible] to recover $6,300 from the order of the United Commercial Travelers of America on an insurance policy alleged to have been held by her husband, George Cupp, was transferred to the Federal District Court on petition of the defendant concern.

Mrs. Cupp, in her statement of claim, said that her husband was a member in good standing in the defendant concern when he met his death on October 31, 1928, as result of being murdered for the purpose of robbery. Mrs. Cupp, who avers she was the beneficiary under the certificate of insurance, said she gave notice of the murder and proof of death, but the defendant concern has refused to pay the insurance.

Because of the United Commercial Travelers of America being incorporated under the laws of Ohio, it obtained permission of the Cambria County Court to have the case transferred to the Federal Court.

Vicious Literature

Secret distribution of vicious literature, distorting the truth in an effort to mislead the public, cannot offset the fact that only the finest tobacco—the cream of the crop—is used in Lucky Strike Cigarettes. Leaders of sport, art and fashion testify to the improved flavor. 20,679* physicians say toasting does in fact make Luckies less irritating to the throat. And the public confirms these opinions. Increase in sales, greater than all other cigarettes combined, prove world-wide confidence in Lucky Strike.

BARNESVILLE M. E. HOST

BARNESVILLE, O., June 20.—The cabinet of the North-East Ohio M. E. conference will meet at Barnesville September 6 for work preliminary to the annual session of the conference opening in Cambridge September 10. Nine district superintendents will attend. They are in charge of what was the largest conference in Methodism until the merger last year of the Ohio and West Ohio conferences. The North-East represents the merger of the North and East Ohio conferences years ago.

The Barnesville session will be presided over by Bishop Herbert Welch, of Pittsburgh. The latter is in charge of the North-Eastern Ohio conference due to the death last spring of Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, who was head of the Cincinnati area.

Never before has the governing body of the North-East Ohio conference met at Barnesville, headquarters of the Barnesville district. The proximity to Cambridge is believed to be the reason for the gathering there, Dr. I. L. Wood, Barnesville district superintendent, said in announcing the gathering.

CHURCH SCORES CURRENT EVILS

RIVER FOREST, Ill., June 20.—(AP.)—Companionate marriage, increase in divorce, decrease in marriage, and birth control, have been condemned at the triennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod.

It was pointed out that at the present rate of increase, divorces in the United States would end one-fourth of all marriages by 1950 and by 1990 the rate would be one-half.

"The Lutheran church calls for a halt in the social breakdown in which marriage has become a matter of mere convenience to be discarded at will and for a series of excuses not in the Bible," declared the Rev. Paul Lindemann, St. Paul, editor of the Lutheran American.

The growing economic independence of women was ascribed by the Rev. Martin Walker, of Buffalo, as the outstanding external factor in the decreased marriage rate and the increased divorce rate.

Flower Guild Opens Receiving Station

Plants and flowers are received here daily throughout the summer by Miss Helena V. Beegle, director of the station, and they are distributed by the various social agencies throughout the city to the shut-ins, and districts where plants and flowers are rarely seen. Ralph Flinn is president of the local branch.

AIR STOWAWAY REVEALS SEA FLIGHT HAD TERRORS

Schreiber Tells Perils; Anxious Hours on Hop

(This is the third installment of Schreiber's own story. The first part told of his preparations for the flight and how he hid himself in the Yellow Bird, going on to recount his harrowing experiences in crossing the Atlantic. His account yesterday told of his reception in France, and how he realized that it was his escapade which nearly cost the lives of the fliers several times.)

By ARTHUR SCHREIBER,

Twenty-two-year-old Portland (Me.) youth, first trans-Atlantic airplane stowaway, who flew from Old Orchard Beach, Me., to Comillas, Spain, and thence to Paris, with Jean Assolant, Rene Lefevre and Armeno Lotti, Jr., in the Monoplane Yellow Bird.

PARIS, June 20.—Now that I have had a little rest and am again living normally, I am just beginning to appreciate what we went through on those long perilous hours above the Atlantic.

It has been the contrast between the present ease and comfort of the beautiful French capital with the difficulties encountered between leaving Old Orchard and arriving at the Yellow Bird's destination that has brought back to me, more vividly than ever, what the voyage meant.

When I entered the Yellow Bird on the beach, it was for better or worse. Whatever were the consequences, I wasn't going to complain. At the beginning, our motor hit evenly and steadily.

After passing Nova Scotia, Lotti said:

"Now, the worst of the trip is probably over."

Worst to Come

But we found out later that we had by no means seen the worst at that time.

Most of the time we flew above the clouds. It was a beautiful sight: The clouds below looked like big white beds. I felt a much greater sense of security when the sun shone than when we were driving onward through the numerous fogs.

Every time we were in great danger, I looked out the window to see how it would happen if we crashed. Personally, I had little to lose except myself. I had no food with me—except a bar of chocolate—and I had worn all my old clothing. There would be no need of good ones if we went under.

I admire Assolant, particularly. He was always very cool-headed. Once, he gave the controls to Lefevre and came into the cabin, where he was very sick.

He rested for about five minutes and then went back again to the pilot's seat—never complaining.

All shared their food supply with me. After the first few minutes of anger had cleared away, all treated me like one of the gang. They never once threw up to me any comment about "spoiling anything."

I asked Lotti once, by note:

"Do things look favorable?"

Lotti answered:

"Things always look favorable until they go wrong."

Exchange Notes

None of us could talk because the motor deafened us all, and conversation was practically impossible. And that, too, left us with our thoughts to ourselves, with no way to express them except by notes. Many were the times when I went hounding my sea-drenched ghost through my troubled imagination—always to be brought around to my senses by the hopeful look in Lotti's eyes.

Riding above the clouds, it didn't seem as if we were making any time, but I know we must have been when I stop now to think back. When I looked down into the clouds, I could see our reflection riding along on the billows below, and a beautiful circular rainbow all around the reflection.

The temperature was quite comfortable until we reached a point just off the Spanish coast. Then it became chilly, but there was nothing we could do about it. My companions gave me the job of reeling in the ground wire when they finished using the radio, and I also did other various small duties.

Lotti very patiently explained everything to me. I learned more about aviation in those 24 hours than I bet I could learn in months of schooling. I think aviation is swell, and intend to take it up as soon as I can.

Messenger Boy

One thing that interested me was the fact we carried two spare tubes for the tires of the undercarriage. They were slightly inflated, and Lotti and I used them as beds in the big cabin. Of course, we got no real sleep during the flight, however.

Incidentally, as we were volplaning down to our first landing at Comillas, Lotti had arranged the tubes as shock absorbers, but this was unnecessary, since Assolant came down so perfectly we hardly felt a thing.

One of my jobs during the flight was to serve as a messenger. This I did while Lotti was at the radio. I had to walk unsteadily through the narrow passage from the cabin to the pilot's seat, carrying the messages covering our position, instructions and other matters.

When the engine stopped and we landed at Comillas, I felt slightly dizzy. My first feeling was of great gladness that we had landed on European soil—being one of the great ambitions of my life. To think I was safe was to realize, once and for always, that it was all due to the splendid piloting of the men upon whom I had played stowaway, and were so kind to me.

Then, too, came the realization of the great danger in which I had placed them, and that if it had not been for me, the Yellow Bird might have landed at Le Bourget Field instead of the obscure town on the Spanish coast.

Natives Kind

One thing I greatly appreciate, and which I cannot repeat too often, is the fact that my companions treated me more like a brother than a stowaway. It is a pity we cannot always understand each other.

The point in my landing with them at Paris—something which made me feel better—happened when I was being hurried across the field at Le Bourget. An American caught my arm and yelled into my ear:

"Don't mind the criticism, kid. You brought them good luck."

These, perhaps, were the first words which really affected me.

At Comillas, there was no question of getting sleep, no matter how much we all wanted it. The crowds kept us going until 3 the next morning. Now I'm getting all the rest I need.

The natives at Comillas were very decent, and when I slept in the Yellow Bird, they brought me a mattress and blankets and pillows so I would be comfortable while I was guarding the plane. There I felt that I could at least do part duty while my companions rested in the town posada (hotel).

Among the many things presented me at Comillas was a real Spanish hunting knife. The belle of the town—Senorita Comillas—presented it, and also kissed me on both cheeks.

Apparently there are all sorts of absurd stories still circulating about the circumstances surrounding my boarding the Yellow Bird at the beach. The simple facts are these:

In the late afternoon, the day before the takeoff, I got into breeches and puttees at home, and took my brother's aviation helmet and goggles. Mother asked me where I was going. I said:

"Horseback riding."

Mother didn't think that was strange, because I was in the habit of riding. But that night at Old Orchard, I was quite unprepared when I met mother, father and a couple of neighbors who had driven to the beach for the evening.

Fibs to Mother

Mother asked me whether I would come home with them, but I said:

"No, I guess I'll stay with the boys awhile."

She then cautioned:

"Come home early."

"I'll try to come home as early as I can," I replied, kissing her goodbye. That was the last I saw of my family.

And, today is my kid brother's birthday. I've just cabled him, telling him he should be glad he's home with the folks and having a real American good time.

I have seen stories printed saying some member of my family asserts there was collusion between Assolant and myself so I could board the plane. That is absolutely untrue. The fliers never saw me before the takeoff, and I don't understand why anyone could have said a thing so detrimental to the aviators themselves. I am sorry any such story has been circulated, and I am sure my family is not responsible for such a thing as that.

(Another instalment of Stowaway Schreiber's story will appear tomorrow.)

AIR STOWAWAY STARTS HOME

PARIS, June 20.—(INS.)—Having achieved his ambition and crossed the Atlantic by airplane, Arthur Schreiber, who stowed away in the fuselage of the monoplane Yellow Bird, boarded a train for Cherbourg at 9:50 o'clock this morning to catch the liner Leviathan, which sails for New York today.

Armeno Lotti, Jr., sponsor of the Yellow Bird flight and the stowaway's business manager, saw him off at the station. Lotti had become quite attached to the 22-year-old Portland, Me., youth and kissed him on both cheeks in bidding him goodbye.

Schreiber is sailing "tourist third." His passage costs $125. The money was advanced by Lotti.

P. R. R. TO OPEN NEW LINK

One thousand men will be employed Monday by the Pennsylvania Railroad in shifting trains on two west bound tracks of the railroad, in the completion of the new link for traffic through Sewickley.

On that day the old Edgeworth and Quaker Valley stations will be discontinued and a new station opened at Quaker Road, to be known as Edgeworth station.

The two new east bound tracks will not be opened until July 20, so that it will be necessary for passengers embarking for Pittsburgh to leave from the present station at Sewickley and those leaving Pittsburgh for Sewickley will arrive at the new station. The latter is now partly completed.

The formal opening of this new link, means the elimination of seven grade crossings between Shields and Haysville.

It is stated that eventually the Pennsylvania will shift all tracks to the river bank from Sewickley to Rochester. However, that improvement is said to be somewhat in the future. The total cost of the shift will mean an outlay of around $20,000,000.

Bible Lesson Lecture Will Be Broadcast

Through an address entitled "Looking Backward," James G. Mace will teach the International Sabbath School Lesson at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Third avenue and Wood street, at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. All men are invited. The address will be broadcast by Station KDKA.

KONJOLA ENDS FOUR YEARS OF COMPLICATIONS

Stomach Trouble Brought On Nervous Breakdown; Then Konjola Brought Health.

Day after day Konjola is adding to its fame and friends as the news of its splendid victories spreads throughout Pittsburgh and vicinity. Not a day passes but that countless voluntary and grateful indorsements are received from those whom Konjola has given health and happiness where suffering and misery once reigned. How Konjola works its seeming wonders is being explained daily by the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Konjola conquers in the most stubborn and chronic cases simply because it is put to the test in such chronic instances. Konjola is a comparatively new medicine and, therefore, is not given a chance until others have been weighed in the balance and found wanting. And medicines, like men, are known by their deeds. It is on achievements and triumphs that Konjola has reached the pinnacle of success, not on words, high-sounding phrases and claims. Let the experiences of others be your guide. Read the truthful and sincere indorsements of Pittsburgh men and women who now have glorious health after taking Konjola. See what Konjola did in the case of Mr. Harry A. Guidici, 139 Overbeck Street, North Side, Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

MR. HARRY A. GUIDICI

"No one can understand what a wonderful thing it is to have health again unless they have gone through the suffering that I have. Nor can anyone feel such gratitude for Konjola unless they have received the amazing relief from this medicine that I have. For four years I suffered from stomach trouble. During this time I didn't know what it was to have perfect digestion. Everything I ate caused distress and discomfort. I bloated with gas, had heart palpitation and shortness of breath. Constipation made matters worse. Sound, refreshing sleep was out of the question. The nervous breakdown came from this condition and no matter what I tried nothing gave me relief.

"I heard and read about Konjola; what it was doing for people in this city. Then I began to wonder if it wouldn't benefit me, if only temporarily. There was but one way to find out and so I decided to give it a trial. I shall never regret that decision, nor forget what Konjola did for me. Imagine my great joy and surprise when in a short time I began to feel better. The pains and distress decreased and soon vanished entirely. It was just as if some magic were at work. My bowels are now as regular as clockwork. For the first time in four years I am well again. Every trace of my troubles has disappeared. Konjola is rightly called the master medicine and is deserving of all the praise it receives."

Every day of delay in giving Konjola a chance simply means another day of needless suffering. Konjola was designed to give lasting, abundant and glorious health, not mere temporary relief.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this master medicine.

TROTZKY MAY COME TO U. S.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 20.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—Leon Trotzky, exiled Soviet leader, intends to apply to the United States government for permission to enter the country, according to reports current here.

It was stated that before making formal application to the State Department, Trotzky intends to get in touch with the American Federation of Labor to obtain its consent. He desires, it was declared, to resume publication of the Russian Journal, Znovy Mirz, which he published in New York in 1914.

In the meantime it was reported here that the Turkish authorities have waived the original time limit on Trotzky's stay in the country and will permit him to settle here permanently.

Ingram Firemen Hold Big Frolic

The fifteenth annual fair and frolic of the Ingram volunteer fire department opened at Thorndale and Prospect streets, Ingram, last night. It will continue the remainder of the week. A program of events is scheduled for each night, for which prizes are offered. Proceeds of the fair will be used to buy uniforms for the 60 volunteers of the department and for enlargement of the fire headquarters. Carl Dittmar, president, is general chairman of the fair.

Detour Announced On National Pike

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 20.—(AP).—The State Department of Highways has announced that a 14-mile detour will be placed on the National Pike, U. S. Route No. 40, in Fayette County, between Brownsville and Uniontown, on Friday. Construction of seven miles of concrete to replace a macadam surface will be started.

Traffic will be detoured by way of New Salem, Republic and Merrittstown.

A. S. COCHRAN DIES AT 53

YONKERS, N. Y., June 20.—(AP.)—Alexander Smith Cochran, 53, chief owner of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company, in Yonkers, died at 2 o'clock this morning at Saranac Lake, where he went last Friday to regain his health.

Last fall he suffered an attack of pneumonia.

WED GANNA WALSKA

Mr. Cochran, once regarded as the richest bachelor in America, was a philanthropist and his benefactions were many. He was a yachting enthusiast and owned the Vanitie, which raced Thomas Lipton's Shamrock. He was the husband of Ganna Walska, whom he divorced.

The carpet works here, one of the largest in the world, was established by his grandfather and inherited by Mr. Cochran in 1903. At that time his fortune was estimated at $30,000,000 and since then had greatly increased.

ROMANCE SHATTERED

Wide publicity came to Mr. Cochran through his short-lived romance with Ganna Walska, Polish prima donna, who later became the wife of Harold F. McCormick, of Chicago.

Mr. Cochran and the singer were married secretly in Paris in 1920. The wedding was a great surprise on both sides of the Atlantic for Mr. Cochran, the former "most eligible bachelor" had become known as a "confirmed bachelor."

In less than a year there were rumors that the romance had been shattered, with stories of prospective divorce suits by both. The proceedings were instituted by Mr. Cochran and he was granted a decree by the Paris courts in June, 1922. The grounds upon which the divorce was granted were not made known, nor was the financial settlement made by Mr. Cochran to the singer.

PHONES ON SHIP LINKED TO LAND

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, has announced that radio tests will begin immediately between the liner Leviathan and the company's experimental station at Deal Beach, N. J.

These tests, he said, are expected to lead ultimately to regular telephone service between ships at sea and any home or office in the United States.

"There appears to be a growing need," Mr. Gifford explained, "for means by which the passengers on trans-Atlantic liners may talk with any telephone subscriber on land. As a first step a shore station in the vicinity of New York will be erected immediately and radio telephone equipment will be installed on the steamship Leviathan of the United States line."

FIRST U.S. OPERA SUNG IN PARIS

PARIS, June 20.—(AP.)—A Paris audience last night heard and liked its first American opera, the performance being the first opera in English ever produced on the European continent. The work was Frank E. Harling's "A Light from St. Agnes." The libretto was by Minnie Maddern Fiske.

The settings were in simple lines but gorgeous colors by Natacha Rambova (Winifred Hudnut). The audience included most of the prominent persons in the American colony and many French notables.

Raefaelo Diaz, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, sang the part of the monk, and Howard Preston, of the Chicago Civic Opera, played the part of the lover. Alice Tully, niece of Alanson B. Houghton, former American ambassador to Great Britain, led the chorus.

The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern

A POPULAR STYLE FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL.

Plain gingham is here combined with checked gingham. One could use jersey or tweed, with checked wool. Plaid woolen or plaid silk is also suggested for the trimming. Or blue linen with organdy in a contrasting color. The long waist portions are joined to plaited skirt portions. The neck facing, simulating a tie collar, is a feature of this model. The sleeve, a bishop model, is pleasing and comfortable.

The pattern for this attractive design is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the dress for a 14-year size will require 4 yards of 39-inch material if made without contrasting material. To make neck facings, tie belt and cuffs of contrasting material will require ⅝ yard 39 inches wide and cut crosswise.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

2 New Features Offered On Tonight's Radio Bill

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

TWO new features will be brought to the air tonight in the Rollickers at 8 o'clock and the New Yorkers at 10 o'clock, both over WJAS. The Rollickers will be accompanied by a symphony orchestra. The New Yorkers will present dance music.

At a hot time like this, KDKA makes it even hotter by taking us to Hawaii at 10:30 o'clock on the Trip Around the World. At the same hour over WCAE Madame Albani will perform in a Spanish drama, "In Old Madrid."

Some numbers we think you will like are:

Gertrude Mohr's playing of Kreisler's "Caprice Viennoise," WCAE at 7.

Friml's "Rose Marie," KDKA at 7:30.

Vacation melodies on the Lehn and Fink Serenade at 8 o'clock.

Wilfred Glenn, bass, singing "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," and a tenor singing Schumann's "Traumerei," both on the WCAE program at 9 p. m.

An ensemble playing selections from "Song of the Flame," on the Veedol program, KDKA at 9.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Bridal Party To Be Feted Tomorrow

THIS enervating heat wave seems to be having little effect on all the social affairs planned for the month. There are just as many parties for the brides as there would be in crisp October—and certainly there are far more brides to entertain for. We really can't complain about it, though, because the blight of mid-summer inactivity is looming a little too near.

One of the brides who is being entertained a lot is Emily Fulton, daughter of Mrs. William Kirker Fulton, of Wilkinsburg, who will become Mrs. Robert Martin Hays on Saturday evening. The Robert Charles Todds, who were married, themselves, early in May, are going to give the rehearsal supper tomorrow night in their home. It will be a buffet affair and will follow the rehearsal, I understand. Mrs. Todd, who was Darrel Morrow before she was married, will be matron of honor at the wedding.

One of the bridesmaids, Frances Keiser, gave a bridge luncheon today in her home for Emily, and last night the William F. Ewarts were hosts at a bridge party and buffet supper for Emily and her fiance. Mrs. Ewart is to be a bridesmaid and Mr. Ewart one of the ushers. Mrs. Karl Straub, also one of the bridesmaids, entertained with a bridge luncheon on Tuesday afternoon, and last week Mrs. W. H. Ludwig gave a bridge party for Emily.

AND speaking of rehearsal dinners, Mrs. Albert Pressly Burchfield is going to entertain tomorrow night in the Pittsburgh Field Club supplementing the rehearsal for the wedding of her niece, Ivy Friesell, daughter of the William Henrici Friesells, of Elgin avenue, and Dr. George Logan Kesel, son of Mrs. George W. Kesel, of Stratford avenue. This ceremony, you know, is set for Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in the bride's home.

A VISITOR, instead of a bride, is being widely entertained down in Sewickley, I hear. I am referring to Mrs. Barnet Spencer Heddens, of Kansas City, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Paul L. Griffith. Mrs. Robert Clause is giving a luncheon tomorrow for Mrs. Heddens, and among others who have given parties for the visitor are Mrs. William McBride, Mrs. Elizabeth Nevin Jennings, Mrs. James H. Austin, Jr., Mrs. Charles Todd, Mrs. Prescott L. Lyon and Mrs. Donald Thompson.

AT 8:30 o'clock last night, the marriage of Miss Helen Garden, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. A. W. S. Garden, of the North Side, and Denass Ellsworth Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ellsworth Barnes, of Coshocton, O., was solemnized in the Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal Church, North Side, by the rector, Dr. Garden, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Frank Orr Johnson, rector of Christ Church, North Side. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Humphrey Garden, wore cream taffeta made with a tight bodice and a skirt which formed a short train. Her tulle veil was held with a cap of old lace, which had been worn by her mother at her wedding, and she carried gardenias. Mrs. Pierre Mason Johnston, as matron of honor, appeared in citron chiffon with a hat of eggshell straw, while the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Vance, in blue chiffon; Miss Marie McSwigan, in orchid chiffon, and Miss Isabelle Bishoff, in apricot chiffon. They wore eggshell straw hats and carried spring flowers. Annabelle Harrah was flower girl, wearing pale green chiffon, and the ring bearer was James Tyler Ramsey. Guy O. Bettlestone was best man and the ushers included Leonard Whitehouse, Pierre Mason Johnston and William Shaw, of Pittsburgh; John McCleary, of Baltimore, and Emmett R. Guthrie, of Coshocton. A small reception followed the ceremony, and later Mr. and Mrs. Barnes left for the East. They will sail July 5 for a trip abroad and upon their return in September will be at home at the Shady Side Academy, Fox Chapel road.

MRS. GEORGE M. WEST, of Clarksburg, W. Va., gave a bridge luncheon yesterday in her home in honor of her niece, Miss Mildred West, of Barnes street, Wilkinsburg, whose marriage to Lucian Lerop Leape, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Leape, of Covington, Va., will be solemnized Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg.

The Rev. Charles J. Whitlatch will perform the ceremony. Miss Ellen Hootman, of Washington, Pa., will be maid of honor and Miss Audrey West, sister of the bride, will be flower girl. Francis Fairman, of this city, is to be best man.

JULY 17 is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Ruth Evelyn Mundell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lincoln Mundell, of Main street, East End, and James Hartley Mering, Jr., of Crafton, whose engagement was recently announced. The ceremony will be performed in the Mundell home.

THE marriage of Miss Jean Stolzenbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Stolzenbach, of Dormont, and W. Twiford Burgess, son of William T. Burgess, of Mt. Lebanon, was solemnized last night at 7:30 o'clock in the Stolzenbach home by the Rev. C. M. Miller, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents on the same date 27 years ago. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white moire with a yoke of duchess lace, with a veil of tulle caught with a cap of the lace and orange blossoms. She carried orchids, white rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Mrs. J. H. Stolzenbach, as matron of honor, appeared in orchid organdie over satin, while the bridesmaids, Miss Virginia Crawford and Mrs. Eugene M. Meyer wore green organdie over satin. They carried dresden bouquets. William P. McKnight was best man, and the wedding music was played by Miss Clara Bachmann. After a southern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Burgess will be at home in Dormont.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Jean Acheson, of Monongahela, and James B. Minor, of Pittsburgh, which was solemnized Monday in the home of the Rev. S. L. Parcell, of Washington, Pa. Mr. Parcell officiated, assisted by the Rev. H. H. Travis, of Donora. Miss Virginia Acheson and Charles Acheson, sister and brother of the bride, were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Minor have left for a trip to Florida and after July 1 will be at home in Oneida street.

MRS. ZOE SCHELL BURGOYNE, of Brighton road, Bellevue, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Zoe Burgoyne, to John Kenneth Murray, of Wilkinsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McCance Murray, of St. Petersburg, Pa. No wedding date has been set.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage of Miss Mary Liebman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. Liebman, of Hobart street, and Myer Ruttenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ruttenberg, of Raleigh street, which was solemnized June 11 in the Cardinal room of the William Penn Hotel by the Rev. M. L. Sixitz. Mrs. B. Alpern, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor and Miss Genevieve Mervis, maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lucille Hecht, Miss Jeannette Wald, Mrs. H. Ruttenberg and Mrs. M. The Deadline For Vamps

IS THERE a life, after forty?

Not for WOMAN—if you can believe all the masculine cynics.

Every now and then, one of these rises to announce flatly and cruelly that no woman who has reached the deadline of forty, or even the ripe old age of thirty-five, need cherish the fond hope that that she can go on "making a hit with the men."

* * *

She might just as well turn on the gas, or commit hara-kari, or suttee, and put herself out of her misery. She has nothing more to live for!

HELEN ROWLAND

Shades of Ninon de L'Enclos, Peggy Joyce, Lady Astor, Texas Guinan, Elinor Glyn, Queen Marie and Fanny Ward!

Think of THAT—all you women, who have been too busy trotting around the globe, or writing books, or running for Congress, or running shops or newspapers, or getting married for the third (or the fourth—or the sixth) time, to realize your plight!

* * *

Just as though any normal modern woman, who is approaching the fatal forties, hasn't long ago found something more profitable and interesting to do than hanging around setting her permanent wave for a man!

It is true that many a woman has found the most beautiful and wonderful love of her life, after forty. Also, that some rare man-charmers have managed to go on playing the Lorelei, after fifty. And that some mid-Victorian widows never seemed to know when their vamping days were over.

* * *

But these were all striking exceptions, even in the benighted days when man-baiting was not only woman's chief business in life, but her only pastime. In these stirring and stimulating times, only a feeble-minded woman would waste her brains and energy on the tame little sport of vamping, after forty.

By the time she is thirty-five, the average modern woman has either GOT her man—or gotten RID of him; and the most incorrigible flirt has had enough of the love game to satisfy her curiosity and her vanity for the rest of her life. She has neither the time nor the taste for casual pallid flirtations. She's looking for new and thrilling adventures.

It may flatter her vanity to know that she looks fifteen years her own junior, and that men still turn around to gaze at her. But it is a real comfort to be able to go to bed at 10 o'clock and get her beauty sleep, instead of sitting up until midnight, listening to some man talk about himself. Or to dine when she's hungry, instead of waiting for some last-minute sheik to show up.

* * *

The sort of "loose-ankle love" that passes for romance, nowadays, is such weak TEA, beside the excitement of playing the stock market, dabbling in real estate, flying a plane, running a business, building a bungalow, or traveling around the world, that only a moron could extract any kick out of it. It is like helping the baby build his blocks.

* * *

Love—REAL love—is welcome to any woman, at any age, any time, anywhere. But, as a life work, "making a hit with the men" is the maximum effort for the minimum returns!

OLD AND NEW PARADISES

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

THE Paradise of old, according to the Tent-maker, was a place where the "loaf of bread, the jug of wine, and thou beside me in the wilderness" were essential components. The modern Paradise is just the Beloved. Nothing else is needed. Any place they happen to be is Paradise for them, and why shouldn't it be?

Love needs nothing but itself to make for the perfect and complete happiness of those in love. Neither time nor place count in their calculations and the rest of the world goes by in a dreamy haze. Nothing is real except themselves and their love. They are, indeed, sufficient unto themselves.

Paradise is simply what you make it—a place where nothing but Love and Happiness dwells; where ugliness and harsh words and doubts have no place; where each lives but for the happiness of the other. Of course, the serpent sometimes does manage to enter, but true Love defies him and drives him away. Only the Love which is not of sufficient strength welcomes the serpent and listens to his temptings.

So make of your Love a Paradise wherein nothing but Happiness, Peace and Contentment can dwell. For in this way alone you will find the true Romance and the Ideal Love which is your birthright.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Fear of Tuberculosis Often Unfounded

EVERYBODY has a dread of tuberculosis. This used to be such a common and fatal disease that all mankind came to fear it.

One of the achievements of modern science is the progress it has made in conquering tuberculosis. It is disappearing rapidly, thanks to general knowledge of personal hygiene. We may hope to see it disappear as one of the major ailments.

DR. COPELAND

A symptom which is almost always associated with tuberculosis is bleeding from the lungs. No matter whence it came, blood in the sputum always alarms the victim. At once he wonders if there is something dreadfully wrong.

"Hemoptysis" is the term given to such expectoration of blood. Not by any means is blood in the sputum due to a serious disturbance.

It may come from bleeding from the gums, or from a cut place in the tongue or inside of the cheek. A crust of bread or a rough touch may injure the delicate tissues and cause hemorrhage.

Following a severe attack of coughing there may be a rupture of the tissues in the throat. In consequence, the sputum may be stained with blood.

While we are about it, we better speak of other conditions that cause bleeding and its expulsion from the mouth. I had not thought to be quite so technical, but having begun, it may be better to complete the story.

In hemoptysis the blood is coughed up. The discharge is bright red and quite frothy. It is mixed with air.

There is another condition called "hematemesis." This term is used to describe bleeding from the stomach.

In this condition the blood is likely to be vomited up, but, of course, may be expelled in small quantities. This is a much more serious thing than hemoptysis. It is due to some disease of the stomach, as ulcer or something even more important.

If much blood is expelled, no matter what its source, the important thing is to keep absolutely still. An ice-bag over the throat, chest or stomach, wherever it appears, is the place from which the blood comes, will help to control the bleeding.

If the blood comes from the mouth or throat, bits of ice held in the mouth will be useful. The cold tends to stop the bleeding.

Unless you locate the seat of trouble, talk with your doctor. If the bleeding continues or is profuse he should be called at once.

In the meantime, keep quiet in bed. Have the pillows high, so as to raise the upper part of the body.

Remember that a lot of blood can come from a very small spot. You have cut your finger just a tiny bit and bled furiously. So don't think you have some dreadful thing wrong with you. The chances are all on your side.

Answers to Health Queries

Miss L. G. A. Q.—My father, a man of 51, with no bad habits, awakes every morning with a nervous feeling throughout his entire body and numbness in the right leg and arm at times. He also suffers with sleeplessness—what do you advise?

A.—Probably due to poor circulation. Massage should help the numbness, but it would be wise to improve the health in general and in this way increase the circulation. With better health he will probably enjoy sound, restful sleep.

Miss L. E. R. Q.—About 10 years ago I had a small mole removed from my face by the electric needle—it is now noticeable again and I would like to know if there is anything that can be done to prevent its entire re-growth?

A.—See a skin specialist for his advice.

Household Hints

To preserve bamboo furniture, polish it once a week with a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and linseed oil.

Use a little turpentine when cleaning a dirty sink. It will remove all grease, and the smell evaporates quickly.

To improve boiled bacon, add a teaspoonful of vinegar, two cloves and a little powdered nutmeg to the water.

When making egg custard mix the beaten eggs with milk that is slightly warm, and the custard will not turn watery.

LOVE'S AWAKENING

A Continuation of Love's Embers

—By ADELE GARRISON—

Harry Develops Jealousy When Marion's Future Is Threatened.

KATHERINE'S comment upon Lillian's feeling for her husband came back to me forcibly when within the hour Dicky and Harry Underwood drove into the farmyard. There was the look in her eyes, the lilt in her voice as she greeted him which a woman accords only to her best beloved.

The revelation was only a matter of tone and look, however. Outwardly her greeting of Harry, as mine of Dicky, was casual, while theirs was equally nonchalant, tinged with the nonsense so frequently investing the speech of both men.

But there was no mirth in either man's voice when after dinner they maneuvered an opportunity to speak to me alone.

"What's this dope about the Brixton girl going to Marion's school?" Harry demanded. "I didn't say much to Lil about it, for I didn't want to upset her, but it doesn't look good to me a little bit."

"Looks like a put-up job," Dicky said. "I wonder who stood for it."

There was in his voice, or so I fancied, the eternal conjugal tendency to blame any untoward happening on the other half of the matrimonial partnership. I stiffened resentfully, though I kept my voice calm.

"I don't know what we could have done about it," I said, "although Katherine and I share your opinion that either Mr. Brixton or Mr. Owen—probably both—found out what school Marion was attending and then entered Carolyn there. But it is almost impossible to change Marion's school now, and if you had seen Helena Brixton and her children you would have acquitted them of any underhand dealing. They are as unsuspecting as Lillian is. Queerly enough she hasn't thought of any possible scheming in that direction on Sam Brixton's part—and Carolyn is the dearest little trick imaginable. She would be an ideal friend for Marion."

"As ideal as her brother," Harry Underwood drawled, and I suddenly found myself ranged definitely on Ronald Brixton's side as I heard the slighting note in the voice of Marion's stepfather. But there was no resentment for him in my heart. I knew that, never having had a child of his own, he was experiencing paternal jealousy of Marion's first admirer.

"She couldn't be better," I retorted warmly. "Both Ronald and Carolyn are wonderful—well bred, clean cut, charming—exactly the types that any mother ought to be overjoyed to have as companions for her young people."

"That's all very well," Dicky struck in. "We'll concede that you can see the pin feathers sprouting on their shoulders. But that doesn't alter the fact that Marion will be thrown into intimate contact with the whole Brixton family. Harry tells me that there is an arrangement already for Marion to take in a football game and dance with the boy, and if the girl is her roommate, can't you see——"

"I see perfectly," I returned, "and I am worried over the possibilities of Samuel Brixton's taking advantage of this close association as you possibly can be. But what can be done? We have only conjectures to work on, anyway. There isn't the slightest proof, only our own hunches, that Samuel Brixton means any mischief. And it's a certainty that his wife and children are innocent of any scheming. All we can do is to keep watch of Samuel Brixton's activities and those of his halfbrother."

"You are eminently correct, Lady Fair," Mr. Underwood said, "and the first requisite of sucess for that espionage is that they do not know me or the Dicky-bird. They'll all be down at school tomorrow, Lil said, so we'll just change our plans pronto. We'd planned to have the old quartet escort the kid down to school, but now the Dicky-bird and I shall be conspicuous for our absence. You and Lil can mange the boat, can't you?"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dance Etiquette

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it proper for a girl to ask a young man to sit with her after she has danced with him? And, if so, what should she say?

2. When a young man wants to know what next dance he can have what should one say?

3. When someone says "Glad to have met you" or "Glad to have made your acquaintance," what should one reply?

INTERESTED.

THE girl had best wait for the young man to ask her if he may sit with her after they have finished a dance. You see, if the girl asks the man, he may be embarrassed in explaining to her that he is "due" at some other princess' side to claim the next dance that she has promised him. On the other hand, if the young man is not engaged for the next dance, and he wishes to sit with the girl with whom he has just danced, he will not, being a man, be at all shy about asking for her permission to sit with her.

2. Tell him which one you have to give to him. Say "I have the next two dances taken, but I should be delighted to give you the one after that. That is, the third from this one—will that be all right?"

3. I hope that no one makes either of these statements in this form. For it is not good form to use a subjectless sentence—with the possible exception of "Thank you." That is, we should not omit the "I" am very glad to have met you." The expression, "made your acquantance" is always to be avoided, for it is awkward and cumbersome.

Now lets reconstruct your question, and think what we will say if someone graciously says to us, "I am very glad to have met you." Let's thank the person first for the pleasantness of the statement and then add some comment that will idicate that the pleasure is ours, too. Something like this: "Thank you. I am happy to have met you, too.' We can too, if we are especially enthusiastic, add that I do hope that I am to see you again soon" or I am looking forward to seeing you again sometime" or "I do hope that our paths will cross again soon."

The Wedding Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Please tell me whether or not it is necessary for the bridesmaid to give the bride a personal gift. The bridesmaid and a friend are jointly sending a wedding gift and the bridesmaid is wondering if a personal gift is in good form.

2. Will you kindly criticize my handwriting and letter paper? A. S.

THE wedding gift is the only one that would be expected from the bridesmaid; a personal gift also is not necessary.

2. Your handwriting is unusually good, and full of character. Your letter form, too, is excellent. And I like your letter-paper as far as its color and size are concerned (since your writing is exceptionally small), but I don't care for the bizarre lines that conceal the really good texture of the paper.

Healthful vegetables need not be unappetizing

Little water and small amounts of sugar work wonder flavors in these beneficial foods

A FAMOUS cooking specialist, on the staff of two large magazines, has announced a discovery of importance to everyone interested in healthful, delicious foods.

This woman announces her discovery to all interested in better tasting foods. "We have discovered," she says, "that sugar in correct amounts added to the vegetables while cooking, intensifies the natural flavor in fresh vegetables, restores in large measure the flavor of freshness to slightly wilted vegetables, and enhances the flavor of canned vegetables." In all instances she emphasizes that sugar increases the food value of the vegetables. She gives the following delicious recipe:

PEAS COUNTRY STYLE—To 2 cups of shelled peas, allow 4 young tender carrots, and a small onion. Scrape and slice the carrots, and cook them and the peas in just enough water to cover, adding 1 level tablespoon of granulated sugar. When nearly tender add a chopped onion and 1 generous tablespoon of butter. Add salt and pepper to taste and 1 level teaspoon of sugar. Simmer until the onion is cooked.

The wonderful thing about sugar as a flavorer, recommended by good cooks and scientists alike, is that it develops the appetizing flavors of fruits and meats as well as vegetables—in fact makes nearly every good food more palatable. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

Eve Seeks Friendship of Ruth as She Recovers From Wounds

CHAPTER XXXV.

RUTH HARDING'S life hung in the balance for many weeks. Big Tim had come over from Honolulu when word first reached him, spurred on by Selma's frantic anxiety, for she could not come.

When he saw the white, drawn face of his first-born, lying so lifelessly while the battle between life and death was waged, he softened toward her. It needed but one look at Al's face to tell him that he loved this tiny daughter of his with a love that comes but once into a man's life, and Big Tim was not the sort of man to hold the quality of love, when it is proved, against one.

The heartiness which he put into the handclasp between Al and himself told the younger man more plainly than words that all rancor between them was forgotten—that if Ruth got well, they would all be happy together.

Sometimes out of tragedy, happiness springs. But always there must be wagging tongues bearing their various messages—of love and hate; of gossip and malice.

When the first news of Ruth's tragedy reached Honolulu, the matter was discussed in many homes. She had given them something to think about, and to talk over, in that first interview she had given out about her companionate marriage. But it was as nothing compared to this latest tid-bit. And Jimmy's arrest for attempted murder made all the details public property.

On various porches Mrs. Grundy communed with Mrs. Gossip in the hot, humid afternoons, after their morning's work was completed.

Ruth Wilson did not die. After weeks of weary struggling and intense pain she came back to the anxious watchers at her bedside, smiling her own little roguish smile, holding the big, bronzed hand of Al in her weak clasp.

Al's first move, when Ruth was strong enough to talk over things, was to have the charge against Jimmy dismissed. He had suffered enough—through his own remorse—through the blow which had been dealt his pride—and his pride of the entire Adams family. For an Adams to be arrested was disgraceful enough. And Jimmy returned to the mainland shortly thereafter.

Al and Big Tim were so happy at seeing her funny little smile lighting up the small face, from which the dark violet eyes looked so affectionately at them as the two big men bent over her bed, or spent hours by her bedside reading to her, that they would have granted reprieves to all the sick minds in the world, had it been in their power.

"Just think, Ruthie," Big Tim said one day, as they were planning her return to Honolulu as soon as she could be moved, "Charlie Smith, the contractor, told me that he would have the house ready for you two kids to live in in about another month. Won't it seem fine to have you so near us?"

Big Tim was having a lovely home built as a delayed wedding present to his daughter. The grounds faced the lovely slope of Manoa Valley, there where the Koolau Range cast long purple shadows across the green of well kept lawns.

"Thanks a lot, Big Boy," Ruth smiled back at him. "I'll broil you the best steak you ever tasted when I get in my own kitchen."

"Nothing doing. Tashika is going to be your cook. She's Yoshi's sister."

Ruth Harding's illness had a far-reaching effect in more ways than one. Probably the only one whom Jimmy Adams had really injured was himself, looking at things in the broader sense.

It had been the means of making Big Tim relent; of showing even Al and herself that love which weathered storms was the greatest thing in the world.

But it had frightened Eve. No one loved life more—nor feared death as much—as did Eve Whiting. The suddenness of Ruth's accident showed her the frailty of life's thread.

A friendship had developed with Ruth. Eve didn't know it, but the wholesome, reckless nature of Ruth had much to give her. Eve came to call on her after her return to Honolulu, and asked to be friends with her.

"I don't know, Eve," Ruth had returned with all the frankness which always would be a part of her. "I don't really like you, but I do find you interesting."

Eve laughed. She did make an exquisite picture, thought Ruth. But what on earth did she want with her friendship? Was it a game Eve was playing to get information about Don Carlos?

"That's what I like about you—your infernal candor. I know you don't like me, but I can't really hurt you, you know."

"But what is it you want with me?" Ruth had persisted.

"Not a thing that I can put in words, old dear. I've never had a girl friend. I never took time to figure why. But I would like to know you better."

Eve had struck the right note with Ruth. If anyone needed her, she was at their service, always.

"All right, old dear," Ruth gave Eve her slim-boyish hand. She didn't know that in the simple giving of her friendship to Eve she was doing Don Carlos a favor.

PETTING PATTY — Keen Competition

Dangerous Fires

By LARA COOLLEY HAMIL

Daily Short Story

THROUGH the open door came the sound of children's voices, her own and the Endicott's next door. A vast nostalgia shook Marian Wentworth, sick of responsibility, of planning, sick of life. The warm weather that today's snow flurries had brought to its untimely end—weather that the children had welcomed with hilarity as they did all weathers, all of life—she had noted with cold apathy, remembering only the extra work the seasons brought to her.

She glanced disdainfully about the pleasant room, seeing only the toll the winter's smoke had taken of the freshness. Walls, curtains, frames of doors and windows, she saw only dust and the marks of the winter's passing.

Were things ever going to get any easier, she wondered. They were young still, she and Jack, in years, but their pleasures were those of the middle-aged. No stolen good times any more. The few, the pitifully few treats that came their way had to be planned weeks ahead, scrimped for, gulped down between hasty rushing from and to their train out home. Then, and that was the sting of it, regretted, mulled over as this expenditure or that was discussed.

"We might risk it, Marian, if we hadn't—"

Why, grinding poverty couldn't be so much worse. The city stepped in then with free clinics, free nursing, while their own babies, their own ills—how they counted up to Jack in sleepless nights that made him old before his time.

Even the commuting which he insisted on, was for Bennie and Sue. The tiny square of soil they called a garden, the little set of three, tiny spade and hoe and silly rake—was it and the outdoor play they got worth all the sacrifice? So far to school, and an untried neighborhood with all kinds of people moving in around them!

But the telephone interrupted and she walked to it quickly. Maybe mother was calling.

The voice, though, was Sue's, her sister's. Marian caught an undertone of excitement, held under but unmistakeable. She could not tell its nature, and Sue, hurrying to make her train, gave no clue. She was coming out, she said. Would only have an hour or two, but had to see her. Could she, would she send the children away so they could talk?

How like Sue, arranging everything for her convenience! Marian considered. It was her turn to treat, so she would send the children—and the Endicotts—to a movie. Mrs. Endicott would take them for her, as soon as she knew Sue had so little time to stay.

So it was in a quiet and hastily brightened-up living room that she dropped down to wait for Sue. Tea was ready to her hand, and the little cakes Sue liked. She was tired out but happy at the prospect of a visit with her vivacious, happy, prosperous, younger sister. Married to an indulgent husband, Sue was the pitcure-book lady of Marian's wildest dreams, the embodiment to her, of ease and luxury.

But when the bell rang, for Marian had left the window for a hasty touch to the tray she had ready, she opened the door to a Sue so different that Marian felt herself slipping into an odd faintness. About Sue's pretty mouth, arrogant no longer, lay a queer rigidity, and in her eyes the heaviness of tears held back for fear of losing all self control.

Marian knew the look. Had lived long enough to see it on a stricken few, that look of hopeless grief, but why should little Sue?

"Is it Jerry, darling? I talked to mother just before you came."

Sue shook her head.

"Oh, it's not threatened death, my dear. It's worse. For disgrace is worse than death, isn't it? To mother and to you it must be"—and her voice went on in that queer monotone.

"And I've disgraced you, all right. Unless Jerry weakens and he is pretty sure he won't."

Dumbly Marian Wentworth smoothed the fur of her sister's cloak she saw she was still stupidly holding in her own arms. She could not take her eyes from Sue, pacing the length of the room. Knew better than to touch her. Saw her fighting for self control, beating back hysteria and weakness.

She must be allowed to tell it in her own way, Marian knew, though she wanted to shout frantic questions at her, wanted to prompt and hasten the slow telling that Sue made of her story. The soft fur she held felt like a living thing under Marian's touch. Luxury and comfort had surrounded Sue these happy years. Jerry's pride in her and his indulgence of her slightest whim had filled her days and nights with entertainment and frivolity.

Not one care, one responsibility. No thought of children. They annoyed her. Pretty clothes and time for manicures and show and nightclubs. And now this!

But she must be patient, must not try to hurry the broken tale. Poor little Sue. Burned in her first encounter with a world they had not fitted her for.

She had been over-indulged always. Dad began it and the sisters had followed suit. Even Jack was quick to sanction the gifts they used to make her before Bennie and little Sue ran them so close to the wind. Never held to account, never made to shoulder one responsibility.

It must be something pretty bad to change Jerry into the fury the story made him seem. What could she do to help? Mother—dear, petted, sheltered mother must not even dream of trouble till they had exhausted every chance for a reconciliaion.

More than a quarrel, this. Not in any sense a quarrel. A bit of rebellion on her part; a mistaken playing up to the notorious Len Holt and then —Jerry's ultimatum.

"He's through, Marian."

Sue's white lips whispered the words and her hands clasped and unclasped as they had done all through her tale. Would they never stop it, those pretty useless empty hands.

Sue's eyes had followed Marian's and she tried now to stop their shaking and the slow monotonous clasping and unclasping, one in the other. She took up her own right one in the other, studied it, looked then at Marian's who had come to her now and who held her fast.

With her cold fingers she opened out her sister's hands and gently touched a little callous that the vacuum had made, traced still another made from guiding an iron over rompers and ruffles. Thrust Marian from her and threw herself in gusty sobbing on the couch.

Exhausted at last she slept. Tea wagon set aside, and the blind pulled down to keep out the afternoon sun, Marian slipped across to the Endicott's empty house and from it called up, with a vast fear, her brother-in-law's office.

He answered with a brusque inquiry as to where she was, but her explanation hardly completed, he broke in, "Marian, don't go to blaming me. And tell me first, she is with you and she is all right? Sure? And asleep, you say? Then, listen, Marian, and be reasonable."

She caught her breath in a sigh she felt he must not hear, then waited for her clue. And Jerry, bless him, went on.

"Marian, you know Len Holt's record. I saw him studying her and I had to use rough tactics or lose time. She's such a kid, Marian. She doesn't understand and I had to put a scare into her that would leave me free to put my mind on this deal that is going to make her safe always. It's a big one, Marian, and life is going to be different for all of us from now on. Mother, too—Mother doesn't know a thing of this, does she?"

His tone was anxious, distressed.

"That's great. I had to take the risk. But I felt sure she'd come to you. I'll not forget what you've done, or Jack either, for he's here with me. Do you suppose she'll sleep a good while? I'm going out on the 5:20 with Jack!"

Then Jack, blessed dependable Jack, spoke in her ear.

"All right, are you Marian? Hard on you, honey, but I think Jerry was right. We've spoiled her, all of us. It's tough on the girl."

"She won't stand for indulgence from now on, Jack. She grew up today. Tell Jerry he is going to be mighty proud of Sue."

Here is Real Food Value

Besides having an unusually delightful flavor, an appetizing appearance and a texture of velvety smoothness, this new Kraft product, Velveeta, has exceptional food value. Greater food value in fact than we ever have been able to put into a cheese product before.

Several things contribute to this.

In the first place Velveeta is a secret blend of choice American and fine old Canadian cheddar cheese, and made with the most painstaking care with every safeguard, including pasteurization, for its purity.

But Velveeta is an exceptional product in other respects. Velveeta represents a new idea in cheese making. We extract from the pure whole milk more Vitamins, Lactose (milk sugar), Calcium and other milk minerals in greater quantities than ever was possible by old methods, and these we add in making Velveeta. The result is purely a milk product that looks like cheese, tastes like cheese, but which because of its enhanced food value should be called a super-cheese.

Use Velveeta wherever you would use any cheese. It spreads like butter or will slice when chilled. It melts, dissolves and blends so readily with other foods that for cooking purposes there is no comparison. And however used it is as digestible as milk itself.

By all means try a package of this remarkable product. Its appetite appeal is universal. And it is sure to grace your table often thereafter. Your dealer has it.

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Do give it a trial, to prove how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours.

METRO BOOSTERS HOLD 20 RALLIES TONIGHT

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

YOU have noticed the new feature appearing on the theatrical page. It is entitled "Walter Winchell on Broadway." I don't suppose the promotion department will object if I encroach a little on its terrain by saying something about Winchell. He is one of the new phenomena in newspaper work. He has a great nose for gossip about the famous and sometimes infamous of New York, specializing on such entertaining persons as actors and professional writing people. He reached wide attention, and recently won a new job for two reasons: His industry in getting news and his flair for originality of expression.

Winchell is in his thirties. That he is fairly important may be judged from the fact that Time, the weekly news magazine, recently reported his new contract calls for $500 a week and a fifty-fifty split of syndicate sales. If you like to read about the men and women you see on the stage and in the movies, about producers, song writers and novelists and magazine writers, which every newspaperman likes to read, and which they therefore suspect you also like, then you will read Winchell regularly.

Winchell, by the way, if you are still listening to such shop talk, achieved fame and financial stature by "clicking" in New York first. McIntyre, who is termed by Variety, no log-roller, the champion columnist, was famous before his column appeared in New York. So there doesn't seem to be any set formula for success.

Winchell is no respecter of personages or institutions. A magazine to him is a "mag," and a newspaper is a "rag." He is the newest "vogue" on Broadway.

Jake Shulgold was telling about the Scotchman who took a quart of whisky to the chemist for analysis. The chemist reported that the stuff would cause blindness. "You had better leave it with me," said the chemist, but the Scotchman replied he'd take it along as he knew a blind friend who might buy it.

"IF YOU know a congressman," said a friend who heard I was going abroad (I kinda like that) "get him to give you a letter which will get you the courtesy of the port."

"Whatever you do," said another friend, "don't bother with that courtesy of the port. The customs men get sore and you're worse off than in just taking you're turn."

"The first thing to do," said Bill Mossman, "is to rent a deck chair and you're fixed then for the voyage."

"I think," said Bill Robinson, "you had better, instead, rent a portion of the rail."

No less than 14 hotels in New York have expressed by mail a desire to entertain me (at so much a day) before I sail, while from far-off Germany, Switzerland and Holland I have letters saying they will be ever so disappointed if I don't drop in for a short stay.

The point is that when one plans a vacation abroad, one should get a leave of absence before the vacation to have time to jot down all the advice given by other European travelers.

The best tip so far comes from a friend who has given me the French equilavent of "Hey, there." This is the term employed when the waiter is a bit slow. Unfortunately, I have forgotten the French term now, but lacking it, I'll simply pound on the table, which is Esperanto for: "Beaucoup hurry."

Thoroughly sound and interesting was the suggestion of Maj. John Shenkel, a World War hero, who said: "If you have a camera take a picture of Hill 204." It was on July 1, 1917, where the young Pittsburgh lieutenant received a souvenir of the glory of war in his leg in an exploit that stamped him as one of the earliest American heroes. "Gosh, how I'd like to go with you and see that place now," sighed the major.

BRIDGE SPAN LONGEST IN COUNTY

Proposed McKees Rocks Arch to Be 800 Feet Long; Cost Set at $6,885,000

The proposed McKees Rocks-North Side Bridge over the Ohio River, for which bids will be opened July 2, will have the longest single span in Allegheny County—800 feet.

Plans call for a spandrel braced arch, similar to the Pennsylvania railroad bridge at Hell gate, New York. The bridge with approaches will be 6,500 feet long and is estimated to cost $6,885,000, making it the most expensive structure of its kind in the county.

A traffic circle will connect northern terminus of the bridge with the proposed Ohio River boulevard. This circle will have 150 feet inside diameter and will be the largest in this district.

DORMONT POOL NOW OPEN

The bathing season has arrived in Dormont.

Thousands of children as well as grown-ups laugh at hot weather and flock to the borough's municipal swimming pool where a new $40,000 bath house has just been completed. The pool was opened Saturday, but will not be dedicated formally until the annual Dormont Day celebration July 4.

The pool itself, built seven years ago at an approximate cost of $25,000, has been one of the most popular recreational centers in the South Hills. Situated in a delightfully cool and picturesque glen at the lower end of the borough in Dormont park, the bathing pool has been operated for the exclusive use of residents. Permits are issued annually and strict park rules have made swimming privileges hard to get and once obtained a matter of pride among Dormont residents.

So far this year Mrs. Anna Williams, assistant borough secretary, has issued more than 1,000 permits to children and an equal number to grown-ups. Children are assessed only 25 cents each for the season and persons over 14 years of age are obliged to pay $1. Guards, swimming instructors and bath-house employes are under the direct supervision of E. O. Garrett, borough manager.

In part, Mr. Schoen said: "Harm is spread by these would-be psychologists whose advertisements appear in periodicals, guaranteeing health, wealth and wisdom in a short time. Will Rogers Says

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 20.

Some professor said, "Be high hat, be a snob, marry the boss' daughter and quit making a play for the stenographer" everybody said he was all wet, but he was right.

He figures, "students never took a professor's advice, so I will advise along lines I know they will take."

If you don't think the old prof is right, count the poor single, and the rich single girls, and if you don't think graduates are "high hat" talk to a new one.

They will pull a diploma on you quicker than a Chicagoan can a machine gun, but as for the stenographer, she has all she can do to support herself, without feeding and clothing some college graduate, but as bad as youth is, they got more sense than modern old age,

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

STRIKERS' CHIEF FINED FOR CONTEMPT

President of Drivers' Union Pays $200 for Violation Of Milk Trouble Injunction

Adjudged in contempt of court, Carmen De Renzo, president of Local No. 306, International Brotherhood of Chauffeurs, Teamsters, Stablemen and Helpers of America, was fined $200 with the alternative of 60 days in jail.

De Renzo, who was at liberty in $1,000 bond, paid the fine and was released from his bond. He was accused of violating an injunction granted by Judge Elder W. Marshall who imposed the fine yesterday.

It was alleged that he was one of five men who attacked a wagon of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation June 1 in Hazel Drive, Mt. Lebanon.

The milk wagon drivers' strike which has been in progress since May 11 is still unsettled. Efforts of federal, state and local mediators to arbitrate the strike have resulted, they say, in refusal by the company to recognize any representatives of the strikers.

4 MORE GROUPS JOIN WELFARE CAMPAIGN

29 Charity Organizations Now Share in Fund With Other Additions Expected

Four important philanthropic organizations have been added to the membership of The Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh in anticipation of the second annual campaign to be held this fall, from November 12 to 22, according to a statement issued today by Augustus K. Oliver, president of the fund.

The Boys' Club of Pittsburgh, conducting a valuable service for 3,000 under-privileged boys in the Lawrenceville district; the Pittsburgh branch, Pennsylvania Association for the Blind, conducting a workshop and training center for the blind in Second avenue; the Rankin Christian Center, a social settlement located in Rankin, and the Western branch, Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs, active in improvement of criminal procedure, comprise the additions.

These four are added to the 25 organizations included in the first campaign, which was so successful last fall, with the possibility of still others being added before fall. Several organizations have notified the Welfare Fund that the matter of membership is still under consideration, and on this account the Indorsement committee, under the chairmanship of Horace F. Baker, has extended the tiem for applications.

Of the total of $973,492.62 subscribed by 60,000 people in the first Welfare Fund campaign last fall, $824,756.80 has been paid, amounting to 84 per cent, with the final payment due July 1. Each organization included in the present membership receives a check each month for the funds required for maintenance and interest earned by temporary investment of funds not needed at once has already amounted to $10,000, which will go far toward further reduction of the low net cost of operation.

FAILURE SEEN IN PASTORS' FIGHT ON EAST PARK POOL

LOSE BATTLE ON SUNDAY SWIMS

Council Likely to Authorize $40,000 Recreation Unit; Views Aired at Hearing

Council has granted a hearing to opponents and supporters of a proposed swimming pool in East Park, North Side, and likely will pass an ordinance authorizing the project at a meeting next week of the public works committee.

Leaders of the congregations of two churches appeared at a hearing yesterday to protest the location of the pool and its operation on the Sabbath, but their objections were not vigorous. Speakers were the Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Dr. Deller H. Elliott, pastor, and K. M. Young, elder, of the Central Pittsburgh Reformed Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Orr said he did not advocate the closing of all pools on Sunday.

The church delegation included about eight persons, while the sponsors of the park location numbered nearly 50.

$40,000 PLANT

The project was estimated to cost $40,000 and would consist of a pool 40 by 90 feet and a brick bath house 55 by 100 feet fronting on North Canal street between Union and Cedar avenues.

Present plans place the bath house nearest the street and the pool further east in the park. Mr. Young suggested transposing the positions so as to remove the pool and its attendant noise further from a church under construction.

Council asked Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang to give serious consideration to the proposal.

Dr. Orr declared that the operation of the proposed pool on Sundays would be injurious to the spirit of the Lord's Day and would interfere with divine services. He pointed out that Lake Elizabeth in West Park was near enough to serve the East Park district and suggested locating the new pool in the thickly-populated section east of the proposed site.

FEARS LURE TO YOUNG

Dr. Orr declared the proposed pool would be between the churches and the homes of the members and feared that it would be difficult to draw young people from the pool to attend services.

Dr. Elliott said his congregation was building a $125,000 edifice facing the park and selected that location because of the peaceful environment. He said they would not have made the investment if they knew the church was to be located opposite a swimming pool operated on Sundays.

Sponsors of the project declared that the park site was logical because of the availability of the land for a swimming pool and recreation center. They said the district outside the park was congested and that the virtual lack of vacant land presented a serious problem when a play site was under consideration for the district.

USE FOUNTAIN NOW

Rather than intersre with church services the pool would refresh the patrons and prompt them to attend church, the advocates of the project declared.

Necessity for the pool was emphasized, they said, by the fact that 150 children use the fountain in East Park for wading every day.

Speakers favoring the pool were George J. Schad, chairman of the County Tax Board; Robert Murray, Republican chairman of the Thenty-third Ward; Dr. George Metzger, Charles F. Puthoff, George Maurerer and Charles A. Wunderly.

Murray read a resolution favoring the proposed location that was recently adopted by Allegheny Lodge No. 339, B. P. O. Elks, whose clubrooms face East Park.

Parochial Schools Will Close Friday

Supt. Paul E. Campbell, of the parochial schools of the Pittsburgh diocese, said yesterday this year's work would be completed in all the parish schools tomorrow, when the summer recess will start. Examinations are now being held throughout the district, in which there are 234 schools.

STICK-UP MEN ROB TWO IN PARK

Victims Menaced With Guns In Riverview; Police on Trail of Pair of Whites

Police early today were seeking two white men who held up two men in Riverview Park, North Side, late last night. In both robberies the bandits threatened their victims with revolvers.

The victims were Vincent Routi, 1 Waldron street, and Walter Metz, 821 Park street, McKeesport. Routi told police the men relieved him of $5 shortly before midnight, as he was walking near one of the cabins in the park. Several hours later two men held up Metz and took $60 and a watch valued at $40 from him.

From descriptions furnished by the victims, police said they believed the same holdup men robbed Routi and Metz.

CITY PROMISES MORNINGSIDE RELIEF

Garbage Collection Neglect To Be Remedied; Streets May Be Paved

Morningside residents have been assured by Council that their cause for complaint of past neglect in the removal of garbage from homes will be remedied at once, and that future collections will be made every week.

Representatives of the Morningside Community Association appeared at a hearing before Council yesterday and urged the improvement of streets west of Morningside avenue; relief from the neglect of garbage collectors, and action on the selection of a name for the playground in Heth's Run Valley.

Lawrence Dunn declared that at a recent meeting of the association, attended by 173 members, a vote of 10 to 1 was recorded in favor of naming the playground "Enright."

Members of Council explained that three ordinances are pending suggesting respectively "Morningside," "Heber McDowell" and "Enright." They indicated a choice would be made in the near future.

In reference to the street improvements, the visitors were advised by President of Council James F. Malone to circulate petitions for the improvements among the interested property owners, so that Council could prepare the necessary legislation.

Dr. C. B. Maits, health director, declared that garbage collections were neglected because wagons could not get over the impassable streets to reach the houses.

Malone and P. J. McArdle pointed out that the garbage wagon drivers would have to carry the garbage containers from the homes to the nearest point the vehicles could reach just as drivers of delivery wagons and trucks had to carry their packages to the houses.

MARGARET ANGLIN IN TOWN, REHEARSING HER PLAY, TALKS OF GREEKS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

MARGARET ANGLIN arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday, and was rehearsing in the foyer of the Alvin Theater, calm and cool while everybody else in George Sharp's company was perspiring with emotion and Fahrenheit. She is playing "The Woman of Bronze" here next week, and of course a woman of bronze should be impervious to the weather. But Margaret Anglin has nothing hard or metallic in her alloy—she is as gracious and stately as one of those old Greek ladies she likes to act in open air.

Perhaps it is to the stately grace of Margaret Anglin that the success of her Greek revivals must be ascribed. There is something statuesque about her. If we didn't know she was born in Ottawa, we'd think she came from Olympia.

George Seibel.

And that's one of her dreams—to play Antigone in what remains of the ancient Theater of Dionysus at Athens, or Medea in the great theater at Syracuse.

Just about 2,200 years ago those plays were the latest thing. When Margaret Anglin revives them now, they seem more modern than the movies of six years ago.

Word for Actor Was Hypocrite

Miss Anglin has steeped herself in the thought and life of those fathers of drama. "Do you know that the Greek word for actor was 'Hypocrites'?" she asked. "And today we call a man a hypocrite if he acts a part.

"The Hypocrite was introduced into tragedy by Thespis, the first actor known to fame. Thespis used to travel around Greece in a cart, giving his plays. After him actors are still called Thespians.

"Three great names have come down to us from the hundreds who wrote tragedies when Phidias was making statues and Plato was dreaming of the golden age. Those names are Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides.

"Most of their plays are lost. Those poets themselves are shadowy figures, almost myths. Even the stories of how they died are weird and incredible.

"Euripides was torn by wild hounds. Sophocles choked on a grapeseed. Aeschylus was asleep in an open field, when an eagle flying above him let a turtle fall down on his bald head, taking the head for a stone.

"Euripides was the father of woman's rights, and both his wives were false to him. No wonder he wrote problem plays."

Has Visited Classic Scenes

Miss Anglin has been to Athens, Segesta, Taormina, Orange, Syracuse and the other places where ruins of ancient theaters still exist. She likes to think of the educational and religious aspect of the theater in those ages as a lesson to our times.

"The Athenian citizen had to pay only two obols—about eight cents—to spend a day in the theater. When hard times came under Pericles, the state paid every citizen two obols, so he could still go to the play. It was considered a part of education."

Of our modern dramatic institutions, she is fondest of the Theatre Francais. Every chance to see the comedies of Moliere there is embraced eagerly. "The Misanthrope" was the last she witnessed in the "house of Moliere." But it was there she first saw "La Rivale," the play by Kistemaeckers which was made into "The Woman of Bronze" and which she plays here next week, supported by the members of the stock company at the Pitt.

When she first put on that play, George Sharp was a member of her company, so the rehearsal in the foyer at the Alvin yesterday was like a reunion of old friends.

TO A GYPSY-HEARTED LOVER

YOU are not mine in any fashion rife,
I have no worldly claim, yet I possess
More of you than the poor, blind world can guess.
Your hands and mine have clasped the joy of life,
Your eyes and mine grown tender with love's beauty,
Your heart and mine exulted, free from duty.

My spirit opens wide its doors to you,
That you may walk at will within its halls,
Where joy and sorrow both have carved the walls.
The door will never close as you pass through,
No selfish arms will be stretched forth to hold—
Love dies in chains, though they be forged of gold.

Topping a "Wiseguy"

Frisco, who elevated himself from a Chicago saw-dust hoofer to a headliner on Broadway with his flip cracks and drolleries, was bested for the first time last week in his snappy-comeback career. He picked on a youngster, with a lot of hair, who toys with the Steinway for the Jack Pepper-Ginger Rogers act now at the Palace.

"You sure got a lot of hair," quipped Frisco, "I could use you in my act—as a mop!"

"You mean," drawled the newcomer, "that you're finally goin' to clean it up?"

At Last!

YOU probably read the accounts in the newspapers about the Chanin Theater box office stick-up, where the smash hit "Follow Thru" is playing. The robbers got away with $8,000.

The managers now have a rough idea how it feels, for a change.

It is agreeable to know one is imitated, but it must make him writhe to see his minor mannerisms cribbed, poached, and done to rags by a flock of devotees."

Tut-tut. Every flock is a boost.

You Can't Win

ONE of our wealthy play producers "went for the duke" on his return voyage aboard an ocean liner recently. Which means that his stack of chips was knocked over by a cheater who, when the producer stooped to pick them up, rung in a "cold deck," known as "the chill" or "cooler," which cost Mr. Theatrical Manager just "two grand."

This picking up of chips under these conditions, to save a few dollars and thereby losing thousands, is known as "the retrieval racket" among the two-timing liner mob with a sense of color in their reverse English.

Golly!

Eavesdropped at 44th st. and the Stem:

"What sort of a role does Bill take in the play?"

"A very emotional role. In the last act he has to refuse a drink!"

Good!

She is fabulously rich but she bites every dime to see if it is spurious. Because she remarked that she would like to have real beer at one of her parties, an antique dealer friend promoted the stuff for her via his speakeasy. To his amazement a few weeks later, the woman and her husband called at his storehouse and complained about being gyped out of five dollars for the beer. "It was only worth ten dollars," she groaned, "and charged me fifteen! Please get back that five dollars for me."

The antique merchant, who only sells to the very rich, urged her to go right across the street, ask for Max and argue it out. "I'm too busy to leave my place of business now," he said. The woman dashed away to claim her five bucks while her husband remained with the antique expert.

While she was in the speakeasy demanding her five dollars, which she got—her husband was talked into a Whistler painting that cost him $40,000.

"Gee," growled the husband, "that kid looks awful, what are you doin' to him?"

"Nothin', you chump!" flipped the frau, "he's waitin' for you to get the act booked. The poor thing misses the exercise he used to get when we dragged him out for bows!"

Bessie Love portrays a flapperish miss in "The Idle Rich," talk film, opening Monday in the Penn.

ly because the press agent of the revue in which she poses in the lewd knew his Park Row and "leg-photo" editors. None of the rags, however, gave more than this much to the affair, except one sheet, which, innocently enough, assigned a reporter she jilted a fortnight before. He prepared a readable account of the proceedings, devoting much space to the bride's "charm, manner, grace and poise."

But what we started out to report was that unless her attention is called to it here, she probably will never know that the boy she rejected for a sax expert, just deserted journalism for Wall street—where on Wednesday he clicked for his first 100 "yards," which, anyone'll tell you, are the hardest.

Heheheh

It is Jim Tully's observation that those who feel that George-Jean Nathan is too harsh, must keep in mind that the renowned critic took piano lessons for eight years when a child.

Sotto Voce

D'Annunzio Cohen: Thanks, but too long for me. Like 'em 16 lines at most.

Al Klein: You mated "laws" with "doors," shame!

A Kanowitz: Your chain letter, which you believe brings bad luck if it is broken, already is.

Paul Whiteman: No kiddin'?

By Way of Report

The Fred Allen frequently mentioned lately and who was only recently "discovered" by the local critics was hilariously amusing many theatrical seasons ago. Frixample: "The height of impoliteness is for a man to hit a woman with his hat on!" and "I wouldn't exactly say he was a Susie, but if he had been born an Indian he now would be a squaw!"

Lindy, Bridegroom, In M-G-M News Reel

Following the marriage of Col. Lindbergh to Anne Morrow, newsreel cameramen made frantic efforts to secure pictures of the bridegroom. But Lindy in his little boat always escaped. Finally, after following the bridal couple all along the New England coast, the M-G-M News man finally located the motor boat "Mouette" at the Isle of Shoals, off Portsmouth, N. H. An all-night vigil was rewarded with success when Lindbergh appeared on deck shortly after dawn. Excellent pictures were secured as Lindy performed his morning chores on deck.

The pictures are being shown exclusively in the current issue of M-G-M News.

George Bancroft, movie ruffian, is a talking gangster in "Thunderbolt," next week's film in the Stanley.

Gangster chief railroads love rival to prison!

District Attorney accuses Underworld Head of "framing" youth who stole his girl. Rivals now in Prison Death House together.

Prison walls fail to keep "Thunderbolt" Jim Lang from employing his terrific power over the Underworld, District Attorney Calvert believes.

Calvert, in a recent statement asserted that "Thunderbolt" utilized his gangsters to frame "Bob" Morgan, handsome bank clerk, who stole "Thunderbolt's" girl. By coincidence, young Morgan and "Thunderbolt" now occupy opposite cells in the Death House at the State prison. "Thunderbolt" has sworn revenge on Morgan . . . but if Morgan is pardoned . . . for the first time "Thunderbolt" will fail to "get" the man he was after.

Local Barber Thankful for Ten Herbs—Ended Stomach and Bowel Disorders.

Every day more men and women of this section are praising Ten Herbs, the celebrated herbal compound, which for more than a year has been a tremendous success in this city and surrounding towns and countryside. They tell how this modern preparation ends stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders; how it cleanses the human system—drives out waste matter, impurities and troublesome gas; how it puts an end to the aches and pains of rheumatism and neuritis and banishes nervousness. You, too, may know the happiness that good health brings if you will give Ten Herbs a trial. At least learn what Ten Herbs is doing for other local people by calling at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, where this successful medicine with the ten wonderful herbal ingredients is being introduced.

"Ten Herbs made me feel like a new man," said Mr. John K. Ruffo, well-known barber, 224 Dinwiddie St., Pittsburgh. "I used to have trouble with my stomach. I would get so full of gas that I could hardly breathe—had pains and heartburn after every meal. Often I would vomit, and at times I would be so dizzy I would nearly fall over. My tongue was always coated, and I had to arise many times every night. I was also troubled with constipation for a long time. Severe headaches came on me, and there was an awful pain in my spine. With all this, together with nervousness, I could not sleep at night, and would feel very bad during the day.

"I tried many different kinds of medicines, but never got satisfactory relief until I used Ten Herbs. How thankful I am that your medicine ended all my health troubles so that I could enjoy life once more. Ten Herbs gave me perfect health, and that is why I am willing to give it a public endorsement."

Ten Herbs is being introduced at May's Main Store, Fifth and Liberty, Pittsburgh, and is sold at all May's Drug Stores.

M'GRAW ASKS RETURN OF DEAD BALL

DURING the next three days, baseball fandom probably will get some definite dope as to whether the present situation in the American League is a true indication as to what is to be the outcome of the pennant race, or is only another of the misleading signs for which the diamond sport is noted. Thus far, the Athletics have been doing the pace-making, running so far ahead of the Yankees as to give their supporters hope that they may beat out the three-time flag winners this year. But the real test is yet to come, and that test is hand-to-hand competition with the Hugmen themselves.

Connie Mack.

For that reason the five-game series between the A's and Yanks that is to open in New York tomorrow shapes up as the most important in either big league to date. Double-headers are to be played tomorrow and Saturday and a single contest on Sunday. Of course, five games at this comparatively early stage of the race cannot determine the pennant winner, but they can show whether or not the New Yorkers still have the old Comanche sign on the Mackian troupe, and that is the main item to be considered in this flag race.

IN THE last two seasons, though able to beat all the other clubs, the A's have seen their pennant chances spoiled through their inability to cope with the Gothamites. In 1927, the Yankees beat them 14 games to eight, and last year the tribe of Huggins again worsted the Pennsylvanians 13 games to nine, defeating them nine times in 11 games on their own grounds in Philadelphia.

Whatever it was that caused the Mackmen to fold up at the mere sight of a New York uniform applied even to individual players. Take the case of Bob Grove, for instance. This mightiest pitcher in the American League won 24 games and lost only eight last year. No fewer than five of his eight defeats were administered by the Yankees. He pitched six games against them and beat thm only once.

SO IT will be seen that much is going to depend upon the result of the big series opening tomorrow. If the Macks, who have lost two games in succession only once this season can continue their pace against their only pennant rivals, their flag chances will look much better than at present.

Babe Ruth.

But on the other hand, if the Yanks, improved by the return of Babe Ruth to duty, rout them again and show their same old superiority over them, the outcome is apt to play havoc with the morale of the A's and affect the spirit that has enabled them to win 26 of their last 31 games. They may not be the same team, thereafter.

THOUGH the Pirates made a successful finish in Cincinnati yesterday and copped the series, three games to five, by winning the final contest, the fact that Steve Swentoic had to be lifted again was disturbing news to the popular North Side boy's army of well wishers here. Steve has started nine games for the Bucs and was derricked in six of them.

THE only occasions on which Steve lasted the distance were against the Braves on May 6, against the Cubs on May 20, when he lost 6 to 1, and against the Phillies on June 4. Swetonic has worked seven times in relief roles, generally with good results.

His friends are of the opinion that he has not been himself at anytime this season. With at least five other pitchers fit for regular work, Steve may be used for relief work until he recovers his grip or shows better staying qualities.

HAD the Cards been able to break even with the Cubs in yesterday's twin bill, the Pirates would have risen to first place again. As it was the Bucs remained in the second notch, with the Bruins taking the lead and the Redbirds dropping to third.

No club in the National League is going at so steady a gait as the Pirates. They have lost only one series in the last 14 played, winning nine of the 13 and breaking even in four. Of their last 44 games they have won 30 against only 14 defeats—.682 ball.

THOUGH the attendance at some of the major league baseball parks has shown a falling-off this season, the fans do not fail to turn out in force, as of old, when a series that means something is on tap. This will be demonstrated in New York and Chicago, starting tomorrow. Three huge gatherings may be expected at the Yankee Stadium for the double-headers tomorrow and Saturday and the single game on Sunday, and the Pirates, after staging an exhibition number today in South Bend, where Donie Bush performed as a player in 1907, are certain to play to big crowds in Chicago tomorrow, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, when they will be grappling with the Cubs for first place or a position very close to it.

John McGraw.

MANAGER JOHN McGRAW, of the Giants strikes a popular chord among the fans in coming out for a return to the ball that was used 10 years ago in the major leagues before the advent of the present rabbit pill, which has led to absurdly large scores and has crowded out many of the scientific features of the diamond sport.

In spite of the statement recently made by League President John A. Heydler that the ball now in use is not livelier than the old one, McGraw says that last Saturday's 20-to-15 game here convinced him that the pellet is livelier than ever before. "Several years ago I thought the manufacturers were restoring the old dead ball," said the Giant chief, "but that was a delusion.

"AS A matter of fact, the National League clubs have no say about the making of the balls. The manufacturers simply have a long contract ,and they are responsible for the quality of the official leather. To say that the present ball isn't lively is absurd. The one

INVERSHIN, 1928 WINNER, REPEATS

ASCOT, England, June 20.—(AP.)—Invershin, winner of the Ascot Gold Cup last year, repeated his performance today at Royal Ascot. Reigh Count, Mrs. John D. Hertz's American colt, was second in the field of 13.

Reigh Count's performance in the Ascot Gold Cup culminates his turf career in England, where he was sent after winning the 3-year-old championship of the United States last year. He started in five races, finishing first in the Coronation Cup, second in today's fixture and out of the money the other three times.

WINS BY TWO LENGTHS

Invershin, which is owned by Reid Walker, won by two lengths from Reigh Count while the American colt finished three lengths in front of Palais Royal II, which was third. The 1928 Gold Cup winner was quoted at 8 to 1 in the betting while Reigh Count was a 4 to 1 favorite. Palais Royal III paid 10 to 1.

The Gold Cup, run over a two and one-half mile route, was worth 2,500 pounds sterling, (about $12,500) to the winner in addition to the cup valued at £500, or about $2,500.

Three nations were represented in the first three placings for the cup, Invershin being British owned, Reigh Count, American and Palais Royal II., French. The famous cup, similar to the original, which was stolen 22 years ago and never recovered, was on view in front of the royal box, but more securely guarded than on the occasion it disappeared.

CACAO FOURTH

Cacao, owned by Baron Edmonde De Rothschild, finished fourth. Of the continental contenders, Cacao had been most highly favored, but Palais Royal, owned by Jacques Wittouck, the Belgian banker, also received considerable support before the race.

Mrs. Hertz's American colt was ridden by the English jockey, H. Wragg.

In describing the race Jockey Wragg, who was astride Felstead as he won the derby last year, said: "I was attacking Invershin all the way until about a mile from home. A furlong and a half from the finish I went up to Invershin and got within a half-length, but he just stayed on. Reigh Count is really a good horse and I'm very pleased indeed with my ride."

It was a magnificent race, and witnessed by a magnificent throng. Royalty studded the boxes, and anyone who was anyone in English society was on hand to watch the high point in the historic four-day race meeting here.

YANKEE HOPES HIGH

Hopes were held out among the American contingent in the stands that Reigh Count might polish off

Jacobs Scores Surprise Win Over Doeg

WILMINGTON, Del., June 20.—(AP.)—Edward Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh star, created one of the biggest surprises of the Delaware state turf court tennis championships yesterday by defeating John Doeg, Stanford University, in straight sets, 6-1, 7-5, to enter the quarter final round.

Jacobs won by a speedy and aggressive attack. The Stanford star appeared to be handicapped by his unfamiliarity with the grass courts, on which he played for the first time Tuesday.

Joe Bush Wins In Newark Debut

NEWARK, N. J., June 20.—(INS.)—Bullet Joe Bush, former world series hero who bobs up with a new club every season, has made good in his latest job—pitching for the Newark International League team. Making his debut with the Bears yesterday, the veteran defeated Rochester, 5 to 4.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(INS.)—George Burns, first baseman who formerly played with Philadelphia, Cleveland and the Yankees, has been signed by the Athletics again as a substitute.

He won his starting spurs when he defeated the Cardinals on May 28, and has been taking his regular turn ever since with fine success.

Harry Cooper Wins Shawnee Open

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Harry Cooper, of Buffalo, N. Y., captured the annual shawnee open golf tournament from a classy field yesterday with a score of 294 for the 72 holes.

Johnny Golden, of North Jersey, who set the pace for 54 holes, was third, Billy Burke, of Westport, passing him to take second place with 298. Golden had 301.

Pirate Pitchers See Cards, Cubs Clash

CHICAGO, June 20.—Practically all of the Pirate pitching staff, together with Capt. Pie Traynor and Catcher Charley Hargreaves, sat in on the Cubs and Cardinals this afternoon as the two rivals staged their fifth and final clash of an intensive series. A victory for the Cardinals would throw the Buccos in first place.

The remainder of the Pirates are due in Chicago tonight from South Bend, where they are engaged today in an exhibition game.

STAR'S SPIKES PUT AWAY FOR GOOD

By JESS CARVER.

Billie Willie Butler, the now well-known law student, and former scorcher of various cinder tracks in this locale, will be on hand for the annual A. M. A. track and field championships in the Pitt Stadium, Saturday afternoon—but not as a contestant.

Wisdom and regrets come with age, and Billie Willie, who is exactly one year older than he was last June at this time, has hung up his well-worn spikes once and for all. He'll be on the sidelines Saturday watching the guys who run for personal glory and $2.98 medals, and recalling, perhaps, his own last A. M. A. race when he choked on the dust tossed in his pan by the flying heels of Pete Bowen.

U. of Cal. Crews Affected by Great Heat

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 20.—(AP.)—Intense heat has affected the California crews, taking four men out of the two boats. The heat and indigestion were given by Coach Ebright as the reasons for their being unable to row yesterday. The four men are: Varsity, Bontillon, bow; Thompson, No. 6; freshmen, Carlson, bow, and Van Vorhees, No. 2.

The men, said the coach, may be out of the boat today.

Jones Has Fine Round; Picked To Win Open

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—"It looks like Jones again," was the plaint of contenders for the Open golf championship today when they learned that the incomparable Bobby had shot a 39-31—70 in a practice round at Winged Foot yesterday. This is the lowest score turned in to date by a contender playing the championship course this month.

Bobby's second nine was played in five under par.

BUCCOS PLAY EXHIBITION DATE TODAY

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 20.—Burleigh Grimes, celebrated spitball pitcher and ace of the Pirate staff, is keen to begin another winning streak, and with that end in view, Burleigh will challenge the colorful Cubs in Chicago tomorrow.

The Wisconsin Wild Cat holds a psychological advanttage over the McCarthy Clan in that he has thrown them for a loss three times this year without accepting a reverse. When Grimes walks out to the Wrigley Field practice slab to limber up for battle the populace groans and there are no cheers in the dugout den of the Bruins. As a rule, Burleigh makes them like it.

Grimes had his winning streak broken since the club went out on tour, but it required a twilight struggle to get Burleigh in the defeat column. The Homestead Grays stunt of starting a game when most folks are around the dinner table was not to Burleigh's liking, but he went to work without complaint against Pete Donohue and the Reds and finished second for the first time this season. Grimes owned 10 victories before he took a count, so that he is in fine shape and any strain attendant to winning streaks has departed.

PLAY SOUTH BEND

The main body of Pirates reached South Bend early this morning, an exhibition game being scheduled here late this afternoon in honor of Manager Bush of the Pirates, who was a star of the South Bend Central League Clubs 22 years ago. Stanley Coveleskie, who was a prominent spitball pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, is a member of the local independent outfit, the Polish flinger being scheduled to work against the Buccos in the testimonial game.

Manager Bush sent all his pitchers, except Larry French and Fred Fussell to Chicago. With the sharpshooters went Captain Pie Traynor and Charley Hargreaves, Traynor was excused from the exhibition contest on account of his ailing hip. French and Fussell are scheduled to work for the Pirates today.

The Pirates realize that they are in an advantageous position in the National League chase as a result of the 6 to 5 victory over the Reds yesterday. The Cubs trimmed the Red Birds twice at the same time, the Bears vaulting over the Pirates and Cardinals into first place.

The double-edged setback felt by the National League champions dropped them into third place. It is possible for the Pirates to move into first place today while barnstorming. A Cardinal victory over the Bears in the final clash of the series would turn the trick.

WIN CLOSE ONE

The Freebooters had a very narrow escape in their finale with the Reds yesterday. The late innings were played in a downpour of rain, and in the ninth round, with the showers falling heavily, the home team worked the tying run to third base and the winning marker to first with two out. In this crisis Carmen Hill made Horace Ford send a fly to Lloyd Waner, and the Pirates carried the wet victory to their club house.

The triumph had them in first place for a couple of hours, but when the late returns from Chicago showed a second Cub victory the Pirates dropped back into the runner-up position.

Dick Bartell, usually a steady kid in a pinch, made two misplays to get Hill into the big jam of the ninth round. Dick threw one ball wide of first to put the tying run on the bases, and a little later he fumbled a bounder that made the situation extremely precarious. The wet condition didn't help out in the confusion.

Steve Swetonic might have had a comparatively easy victory but for the combination of circumstances as the rain began to fall in the fifth. The painful mixups that kept cropping up around second base put the North Sider in a jam after the side should have been retired. The Reds battered Steve in the rain for a flock of hits and four runs, Carmen Hill going to the rescue.

HILL SAVES GAME

Steve had a six-run lead with one out, with runners on first and second, in the fifth. Dressen hit a bounder straight into Swetonic's hands, and Steve turned to throw to second. Bartell, apparently, should have covered, as the shortstop is in motion for a double play on a number of this kind, but Dick did not go to the bag, and when Grantham finally did reach the spot it was too late to get two Reds on the bounder. Four hits followed, and four runs pattered across as Swetonic left the scene in considerable disappointment.

Hill pitched shut-out ball right down to the finish, but Bartell's loose play let in a run in the ninth. Eppa Jeppa Rixey was shelled off the mound in the third by the Pirates, who gathered all six of their markers before the departure of the big fellow. Luque, Ash and Ehrhardt followed Eppa to the mound.

Indian to Oppose Horse in Marathon

GALLUP, N. M., June 20.—(AP.)—The Zuni Indians, of New Mexico, whose distance running skill has won the tribe an international reputation, have sent two of their tribesmen to Pecos, Texas—one to run a 100-mile foot race against a race horse, and the other to run a 10-mile race against 10 white men who will do the distance in relays.

The races will be two of the feature events at the annual cowboys' reunion at Pecos on June 22.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., June 20.—(AP.)—The Hagerstown High School baseball team won the interscholastic championship of Maryland here yesterday by defeating Mardela Springs H. S., 8-3.

JUNIOR GOLF ENDORSED BY S. A. R.

The Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, has passed a resolution commending and indorsing the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's second annual Western Pennsylvania junior amateur tournament for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy, which is to be played at the Schenley Park municipal links, Thursday, July 11. John L. Walker, president of the state body, in announcing to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph the S. A. R.'s action, said that golf was one means of assisting making real American men of our boys in the present generation; he further approved the spirit of good sportsmanship being instilled in the lads in their early competition.

Entries are virtually flooding the Golf Tournament Editor. It cannot be that any boy in the district is not acquainted with the details of the big event. If there is, this is for them.

The tournament is open to all amateur golfers 18 years of age and under, which includes caddies who are 15 years of age and under and caddying at this time—it does not include boys who are 16 years of age and caddying. Once a boy has reached his sixteenth birthday, and caddies for money, he is ranked as a professional. All entrants must be in classes not above high school grades, as well, and caddies at the district country clubs must meet the test in a preliminary qualifying round.

CADDIES MUST QUALIFY

The preliminary qualifying rounds are held under the direction of the caddie-masters at the various clubs, and the eight eligible boys are those who score lowest play in the tournament, with the four lowest among them competing for a special team championship cup.

The team winning will receive individual medals, and the club it represents will hold the cup. These boys also will have an opportunity to win the Hearst Cup itself, which is emblematic of the tournament championship, and the many other prizes to be offered.

John Jay Burke, city office manager of the Allegheny County parks, is honorary director of the tournament, and he will hit the first ball which is expected to start off a colorful field of more than 300 entrants in the tournament. The entry list is likely to exceed 1,000, but a great many of these entries will have played in the qualifying round for caddies.

There is no entry fee for the tournament. All entrants must provide their own clubs and balls.

The Schenley family, which includes Al McBride, professional; William Earle Super and Charley Onoretta, assistant professionals; Andy Petrolia, caddie-master; Eddie Kunold, superintendent of the locker room; Tom Keefe, time clerk; John Kauffmann, greenkeeper, and Frank Petrolia, have offered their services and are assisting in every way to make conditions ideal for the tournament.

The City Council of Pittsburgh has passed a special resolution setting aside July 11 for the tournament; Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen have both indorsed it—everyone is interested in it. Get your entry in now before it is too late.

FOUR CLUBS IN

The Edgewood, Alcoma, Shannopin and Nemacolin country clubs have qualified their caddie teams; the Butler Country Club will qualify its team next Monday; other clubs will do the same between now and five days prior to the tournament. Be sure your entry is in for the caddie qualifying round at your club if you are an eligible caddie.

Here are some additional entries:

M'TIERNAN TO TRAIN IN BOWL RING

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Leave it to the ingenuity of Luke Carney, veteran local manager of boxers, to figure out a novel idea in connection with Buck McTiernan's debut on the big time against Andy DiVodi, of New York, in the 10-round main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, next Monday night.

Luke Carney

Luke is in charge of McTiernan's training and has been for some time, and he has been trying to work out a way to save his man from the heat as he prepares for his big biggest test so far, and, following yesterday's drill at Flynn's gym, he hit on a scheme which ought to work out to McTiernan's distinct advantage.

WILL ESCAPE HEAT

The plot is to have Buck work outdoors tomorrow and Saturday in the ring at the Bowl. Buck never has boxed in the outdoors and getting accustomed to the surroundings of the Bowl from the inside of the ring and at the same time escaping the heat of indoor training should work wonders with him. Everything has been arranged with the Meyers brothers and Buck and his sparring partners will do their stuff in the Bowl after today's skirmish at Flynn's.

Buck put in six hard rounds of boxing yesterday, with Jack and Pete Zivic and big Jack Wells and Tarzan Joe Poole and also went through other gym maneuvers and at the finish was down to 151½ pounds. The articles call for him to make 151. He drank lots of ice water between tricks yesterday or he probably would have melted off a lot more avoirdupois.

Johnny DeMarco, of Philadelphia, who clowned his way through eight rounds in the semi-final to the Benny Bass-Steve Smith bout at the Bowl recently, meets Lew Mayrs in the main bout of a show at Baltimore tonight.

DE MAVE AT JOHNSTOWN

Jack DeMave and Murray Gitzlitz meet in the main bout at Johnstown tonight. Buck Fleming, local middleweight, formerly of Philadelphia, boxes Linn Jordan, of Johnstown, in another bout on the card.

Pinky Kaufman boxes King Tut at Milwaukee tonight. Pinky upset the dope recently by knocking out His Royal Majesty in a bout at Philadelphia. Jimmy Braddock meets Jake Warren at West New York, N. J., and Vince Guidici boxes Battling Willard at Philadelphia.

Mickey Solmen, New Castle lightmiddleweight, is back in the ring again ready for action, following his layoff after his knockout by Buck McTiernan at the Moose Club. His manager, Eddie Weygant, would like to rematch him with McTiernan at an early date.

Reed Brown has Patsy Gallagher, Bob Collura, Frank Monroe and Jack McCarthy all in condition for battles.

BOUTS AT ERIE

Ray Collins meets Matty Oldach and Leo Mozdy boxes Tony Canzoni in six-round preliminaries to the Sandy Seifert-Tony Fuente bout at Erie tomorrow night. Louie Severo and Joe Perotta are down for a four-rounder.

Dick Pritchard, of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, and Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, will meet in the main bout of the amateur show under the auspices of the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., at its outdoor arena next Monday night. Mike Koppin meets Al Becker and Billy Mackey will encounter Sid Lacove. Six bouts in all are billed.

Dominick Profio, of Cecil, and Mike Payan, stablemate of Dick Ramies, have been matched to box the main bout at Washington, Pa., next Monday night. Maxie Strub and Paris Cangey, who knocked out Frankie Ferro at New Castle last Monday night, meet in the main bout at the Jolly Bowl next Monday night. Leo Mozdy and Mickey Donato will figure in a preliminary.

Boxing Game May Return to Greensburg

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 20.—If Mayor Yont decides to lift the ban that has been on boxing here for 19 years and issues a permit, then the mitt game will come back to Greensburg at the local volunteer firemen's celebration here next week.

The ban was placed because of professional fights 19 years ago and never lifted. It is the intention to hold amateur bouts only and charge no admission.

SETS NEW RECORD

YORK, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. J. P. Sevison, of Pottstown, turned in a record-breaking 86 to lead a field of 86 qualifiers in the eighth annual Central Pennsylvania Golf Association women's tournament here yesterday. Mrs. Sevison bettered by three strokes the lady's course record set by Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, last summer.

INTEREST HIGH IN NET PLAY TOURNEY

Plans for the Western Pennsylvania tennis tourney commencing Saturday are progressing rapidly. Entries are continuing to pour in, among them being a contingent from Greensburg headed by "Tack" Hammer and Don Snyder Byron Bauer, luminary from Erie and Pitt University, is bringing Frank Hoover, Lowell Wingerd and Hartschorn from Alliance, O. Many other entries from out of town, too numerous to mention, are also on file.

Besides getting a leg on the three-year McCahill trophy the winner in men's singles will receive a beautiful cup. Handsome and appropriate prizes also are to be awarded to winners and runners-up in each of the four divisions of the competition.

Local satellites undoubtedly will be hard pressed by the class of the field from out of town. John and Billy O'Loughlin, last year's finalists, and other seeded players will all have their work cut out for them.

J. P. Davis, Atlantic 7499, is in charge of entries.

TUFFY GRIFFITHS WINS

DAVENPORT, Ia., June 20.—Tuffy Griffiths, Sioux City, knocked out Johnny Krueger, San Francisco, in the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

Crawford Hits Third Homer In Pinch

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(INS.)—Pat Crawford, rookie infielder of the New York Giants, is becoming known as the "home run pinch hitter." His home run in a pinch hitting role against the Phillies yesterday marked the third time this season that he has performed the stunt.

Card Benefit Bouts For Charleroi Team

CHARLEROI, Pa., June 20.—In addition to the Pittsburgh Pirates playing the Charleroi Governors, leaders of the Middle Atlantic League, July 1, there will be an all-star open air boxing show at the ball park here in the evening for the benefit of the local team.

Cuddy De Marco, who has been in retirement for the past five months, will be the main attraction. Cuddy has been working out for the past four weeks with other Charleroi boys and is in tip top condition.

Negotiations are under way to get Larry Brignolia, Erie, Pa., battler, who holds two decisions over Cuddy, as his opponent. Three other bouts will complete the card.

Jim Londos, Dusek Fined, Suspended

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP.)—Jim Londos, St. Louis, and Rudy Dusek, Omaha, heavyweight wrestlers, were each fined $25 by the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission yesterday for violating the wrestling rules at the Gothamite Athletic Club, Philadelphia, on June 12.

Londos also was suspended for 30 day for alleged unsportsmanlike actions in the ring.

JAMISON TAKES SENIOR GOLF EVENT

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 20.—J. M. Jamison, of this city, won the first senior golf tournament of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, held over the Hannastown Golf Club course yesterday. His gross score was 78.

T. S. Jamison, also of this place, was second with a gross of 79.

A cup awarded by T. S. Jamison was awarded the senior golf champion.

The tourney was for veteran golfers over 55 and T. S. Jamison, of the Hannastown Golf Club, originated the event, which likely will be an annual one.

The low gross score for 36 holes was taken by Donald MacLeod with a score of 170. The low net score for 36 holes was won by Dr. Chalinor with a score of 143.

H. C. Fownes, Pittsburgh, was first in the 18-hole event, net score, with a 69. Other scores follow:

Walter Williams, second, 70; Tom Morrison, third, 70; George F. Jenks, fourth, 70; T. A. Hunter, fifth, 71; W. A. Nicholson, sixth, 71; H. C. Millholland, seventh, 72; W. M. Merkle, eighth, 72; G. A. Gill, ninth, 72; G. O. Baton, tenth, 73; E. C. Brainerd, eleventh, 73; E. E. McCoy, twelfth, 73; Thomas Biehel, thirteenth, 73; Dr. George Proctor, fourteenth, 73.

CUBS TOP CARDS TWICE, LEAD LEAGUE

GIANTS ANNEX PAIR; BROWNS, YANKS WIN

By LES CONKLIN.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The Chicago Cubs, who have been letting St. Louis and Pittsburgh set the pace in the National League scramble, are back in first place today as the culmination of a steady climb since their disastrous series with the Giants. McCarthy's maulers dote on home cooking and have been creeping ahead slowly but surely on their own grounds during the past two weeks.

The Bruins' double triumph over the Cardinals yesterday by scores of 7 to 3 and 11 to 3, has revived the pennant hopes of Chicago fans. Pat Malone won his tenth game of the season in the first game, thanks to Wilson's homer with two on and four hits by Hornsby. In the nightcap, Sylvester Johnson, of the Cards, couldn't locate the plate and lost his first game of the season.

The Cardinals flopped all the way to third place below the Pirates, who got off to a six-run lead against Cincinnati, but just lasted to the wire to win by a nose, 6 to 5. Manager Hendricks of the Reds hurled 16 players into the breach, but unfortunately was allowed to use only nine at one time.

GIANTS WIN TWO

Baker Bowl the cradle of circuit clouts, ushered eight new home runs into the world as the Giants debauched the Phillies twice, 15 to 14 and 12 to 6, in more than six hours of alleged baseball. The opener lasted 11 innings. Roush got eight hits and Ott seven, and each player smacked two homers.

With Smith and Seibold doing the throwing, the Braves subdued Brooklyn twice, 8 to 4 and 9 to 0. Clark and Dudley, the Brooklyn hurlers, were hit harder than Max Schmeling's sparring partners.

The embattled Yankees will face the Athletics tomorrow with a 7½ game deficit, but with renewed confidence gained by their 13-to-2 slaughter of the Red Sox yesterday. The champions rapped out 20 hits for a total of 31 bases, while dead pan Eddie Wells was pulverizing the Boston batters.

RUTH IN LINEUP

The Yanks got so far ahead that Bob Meusel, never noted for his energy, walked after a fly by Alex Gaston, allowing that lucky young man to make a home run. Meusel was a terror at bat, however, walloping four hits. George Ruth, the big crab and fish man of Chesapeake Bay, made one appearance at bat and gracefully grounded out.

The Champions have been unable to shake off the St. Louis Browns, who scored their ninth win in 10 starts against the White Sox, 5 to 2. Adkins outpitched Gray, but his wildness was costly.

The Tigers were clawing the Indians viciously when rain ended the feast after six innings, with Detroit leading, 8 to 3.

San Guy Victor In Circuit Feature

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 20.—(AP).—San Guy, owned by O. S. Briggs, of Washington Courthouse, O., and driven by Charles Valentine, won the $2,000 Governor stake for 2:16 trotters here yesterday. He trotted the best heats of the meeting in 2:04½ and 2:05. Bogalusa the Great won the third heat in 2:08, getting second money. Alma Lee was the main contender in the first and second heats, leading well into the stretch when passed by San Guy, under strenuous drives by Valentine.

The Royal Lady had little difficulty in winning the opener, a 2:22 pace, pacing in 2:03½ the second heat. Uncle Jad, from the stable of Ben Whitehead, was second.

A pair of Pittsburgh-owned colts, Miss Neffco and Scott Steele, finished second and third, respectively in their heat.

C. & I. LEADERS OUT TO CINCH TITLE TODAY

By TOM BIRKS.

The boys from the Reick-McJunkin plant will try to sew up the Commercial and Industrial League first-half championship this evening when they meet the Gimbel nine at Grayber Field, McKees Rocks.

The Gimbel boys are sure to fight hard following the disastrous setback at the hands of the Carnegie Steel nine. Dick Mackey scouted Gimbels when they defeated Kaufmann's, and he must have passed that information on to the Steelers' strategy board. Gimbels walked into plenty of fast stuff.

Reick-McJunkins is touted as almost sure first half champions.

Laboon probably will twirl for the Milkmen. Scannell again will go to the mound for Gimbels, assuring a well-pitched game.

CIVICS IN FRONT

It looks as if the North Side Civics are in for the first-half championship of the City League. The Civics were always a good starting club, and last season got away to just as good a start, but the disaster that overtook the club in the playoff series against Book Shoe, when the Civics left the field, spoiled the season.

This year, with the level-headed Art Rooney, together with Jimmy and Dan, on the team, the club is evenly balanced. Heidler practically has won the first-half himself.

Book Shoe will meet the W. L. Reineckers at Schenley High School field this evening. Manager Jock Collette is working the club into shape, and the second half should find the Hill club a keen contender.

A battle royal will take place at Verona this evening when the North Bessemer club, with Pete Elder in charge, lands in town. Tomorrow evening the important Wilmerding-Cheswick game will be played at Cheswick.

WILMERDING GOOD

This writer received quite an interesting letter from a Wilmerding fan, letting us know that the Airbrake nine had a wonderful club, though that had been said following the opening game of the season, when the writer journeyed to Murraysville to watch the Geiger nine bow to Artmann's outfit.

One game will be played in the Inter-County League this evening. The Jimmy Smith club will play at Homewood and should Stewart pitch against his old mates, a good game will be offered the fans.

UANSA STOPPED BY ST. JOHN'S; TEAM WINS

Toby Uansa was stopped by Rambo and Cuppett, St. John's hurlers, last evening, but the Stowe Civics won a 6-to-3 City League contest from the Saints. All the Pitt football star showed in the box score for his evening's work was an error. The victory placed Stowe one game behind the North Side Civics for the league lead.

In a second City League encounter, Reliance Life kicked the J. L. Thomas team a bit nearer the cellar by serving it a 6 to 5 defeat.

Beltzhoover defeated the Jimmy Smiths in the Inter-County League 5 to 3, giving Beaver Falls undisputed possession of third place.

In the Commercial loop, Mine Safety downed the Union Printers, 8 to 2. The J. J. Boyles continued to win in the Central League, beating the Harvey Club 13 to 3. Oswald-Hess won over the Edwards Clothes Shop nine, 10 to 6, in a Greater North Side League game.

The Homestead Grays downed Beaver Falls 8 to 4, at Beaver Falls last evening, in a leading independent encounter. Grove City won a shutout game from the touring Havana Red Sox, 4 to 0. Ingomar topped the Twin City Radiators, 6 to 2.

MAX HAS EDGE OVER RIVAL

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 20.—They will be telling you shortly in a very knowing manner just who is going to win, Schmeling or Paulino, at the Yankee Stadium next Thursday night and, being an impulsive, generous fellow that way, I'm willing to mention without further preamble at least two ways in which both of them can lose. It has been demonstrated before that no fight should be called in advance; this is one that can't be called, unless you are one of those geniuses who go in for the blindfold test in a big way.

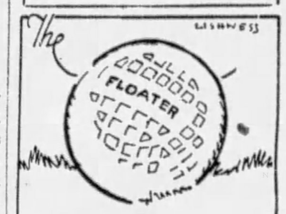
In brief, it is the writer's opinion that all serious attempts to call the turn on this one can run very doggedly for Sweeney and most of his first cousins. A lot of bowsers may call it, but they won't be able to tell you why they did it.

This Schemling, for example, is far and away the class of the two men—as far as the eye is able to see. But the eye never looked through a man's jowl and it is history that he has been belted right on the buckle, or whisker, by some very comical opponents, including Larry Gaines, Gypsy Daniels and a chump by the name of Rumler or something. True, he claimed he wasn't looking, but, unfortunately, everybody else was, so the series of incidents in question got in the record books.

Outside of this, the fighters seems to be fool-proof. He has everything else, including as great a right hand as ever hung on the arm of a man. But can Schmeling take it?

This is the question that will bring more than $600,000 into the milk fund next Thursday—yes, the promoters conceded now that they never will be able to use the million they thought was on the way. It is a question that intrigues the imagination, for it means that one of two things may happen and both of them are likely to be sensational: Schmeling either will win with his punch or lose with his chin.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT



Some beginners shoot nothing but floaters on the theory that a floater is larger and easy to hit. Is this good policy? Why or why not?

Answered By
WILLIE MacFARLANE

Former National Open Champion, and one of the world's Great Golfers: Bermuda Open, 1929; Bermuda Mid-Ocean, 1929

It is not a bad idea sometimes for beginners or short hitters to use a floater ball, as it is larger and lighter than the standard ball.

There are a few reasons in favor of the floater. First, being larger it is easier to hit. Second, being lighter, it is easier to get up off the ground in fairway shots with both woods and irons. Third, and most important, the floater is the greatest ball made to give beginners a world of confidence in themselves because of the reasons already stated.

There are, of course, arguments against the floater. The ball is practically uncontrolable on a windy day. Also, the hard hitter gets very little satisfaction with a floater.

at Beaver High School and later at Geneva College. He ran the 100, 220 and the quarter mile, achieving the distinction of National Junior A. A. U. champion in 1927. Until the Tri-State Conference meet at Geneva this year, Billie held the 100, 220 and 440 records, but young Henry Snellenback, of Duquesne, stepped out and wrested from Bill's helpless grasp the honors in the two shorter events.

SET MANY RECORDS

A year ago, his first out of school, Bill essayed to get into condition for the Olympic Games, and began his preparation by running a series of special races against Pete Bowen, who was ineligible for varsity running at Pitt. Bowen beat Bill in a series of century and furlong dashes, winning without interruption, and capped off a victorious campaign by knocking Willie off in the century and quarter at the A. M. A. meet at Schenley Oval.

Will is assistant track coach at Howard University, Washington, D. C. at present, where he is studying law. Charley West, you know, is the athletic director there. During the vacation period, he is pursuing the almighty dollar down in the Beaver Valley, where the buck is just as elusive as it is here in Pittsburgh.

Efforts have been made to induce Willie to take another crack at the running game, but so far, he has remained adamant to the pleas of his friends who would like to see him burning up the cinders once again. Let him tell it in his own way:

"No, sir, not me. I've got a deep respect for what my children and my children's children are going to think about their grandpop in the years to come. They ain't gonna get a chance to turn my picture to the wall as the old geezer who ran so much he wound up making false starts every time he heard a car backfire. Not me, baby. I'm through."

Hilldale Due Today For Series With Grays

The Hilldale club of Philadelphia with such stars as Oscar Charleston, Phil Cockrell, Holloway, Dallard, Johnson and others in its lineup will arrive in Pittsburgh today for a four-game series with the Homestead Grays, starting at Forbes Field tomorrow evening. The second game will be played at Forbes Field Saturday afternoon with a double-header taking place at Cleveland Sunday afternoon.

All of the Negro League games which the Grays have staged at Forbes Field have been close, hard-fought affairs and as intense rivalry exists between the locals and Hilldale, the series starting tomorrow evening is likely to prove the best of the lot.

Saturday evening the Grays will make their first appearance of the season at Dormont.

REIGH COUNT SECOND

the field, which represented the cream of British and continental horseflesh, and come in first. Ever since he was brought to England last fall, he had been carefully groomed for this event, and in winning the Coronation Cup at Epsom a few weeks ago, he showed his true form.

But Inverhsin, born and bred in Britain, utterly familiar with the Ascot course and with the weight of last year's victory behind him, proved too much for the American horse.

Reigh Count, looking in the pink of condition, was one of the most admired horses in the paddock previous to the race.

At the post the American colt at first refused to face the starting gate, but finally fell into line after holding up the start several minutes. Wragg rated the 1928 Kentucky Derby winner along the first mile well up with the pack, just behind the leaders.

As the field flashed into the final six furlongs there was a general closing up. A quarter of a mile from home Inversin moved up fast, passing Lawsuit, Reigh Count, Palais Royal and Crib Fuguerre. Inversin's challenge was the signal for Wragg to shake up Reigh Count and the American hope slowly crept into second place from where he strove desperately to pass the Walker color-bearer, but could make no impression. Inversin stepped the two and one-half miles in 4:24 4-5.

Baldock Accepts Brown Bout Bid

LONDON, June 20.—(AP.)—Teddy Baldock, British bantamweight boxing champion, has accepted a cabled invitation from New York to fight Al Brown in America for the world title provided suitable terms can be arranged.

Brown, a tall, slim Panama Negro, scored an impressive victory over Vidal Gregorio, of Spain, in New York two days ago, thereby receiving from the New York Athletic Commission the novel title of "defending champion."

Long's Sport Comment

that was in use when I was a player, and later when I managed the Giants, up to 1919, was far different.

"In one of our games in Pittsburgh last week my eyes were opened when I saw Lloyd Waner take an ordinary cut at a pitched ball and knock it over Eddie Roush's head. Young Waner is not a robust chap, like some of the home run sluggers. Of course, he is a good hitter, but in this case it wasn't his strength nor his hitting eye that enabled him to drive the ball beyond Roush. The liveliness of the ball was responsible for its extraordinary flight.

"I HAVE watched all of the instances of abnormal hitting wherever the Giants have played this year, and it is my firm belief that the ball is responsible for the top-heavy scores and also for robbing the game of many scientific angles that once delighted the fans. If the ball were made even livelier the game would be greatly harmed. Under present conditions the hitting had increased to such a degree that it is hard to believe the public likes it. The only remedy that I can suggest is the introduction of a ball something like the one we had 10 or more years ago." In addition to studying the ball, by the way, McGraw is also said to be laying plans for cutting down his roster by dropping three veterans. It is reported that Pitcher Carl Mays, Catcher Ray Schalk and Coach Bert Niehoff are slated for release. Niehoff has been mentioned in connection with the Brave management.

Max Schmeling.

DESPITE the fact that professional gamblers in the East have installed Paulino Uzcudun as a 7-to-5 favorite to defeat Max Schmeling in their 15-round battle, scheduled as the topliner for the big charity show in New York, one week from tonight, Schmeling is not without a strong following. The German's speed may offset Paulino's ruggedness and experience it is figured.

In connection with this bout, a sport veteran expresses the fear that the heavyweight championship is going to pass out of this country, as would happen if next week's winner should later defeat Jack Sharkey or Jack Dempsey for the title. Schmeling is a native of Germany, and Paulino is a Spaniard. Since John L. Sullivan's day, Bob Fitzsimmons and Tommy Burns were the only heavyweight champions not born in the United States. All the rest—Sullivan, Corbett, Jeffries, Johnson, Willard and Dempsey—were native Americans. Sharkey, though of Lithuanian parentage, was born in Binghamton, N. Y.

MARKET TURNS AFTER EARLY RECESSION

Stock Recovery Resumed Following Heaviness at Opening of Day's Trading

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—The recovery in stock prices was resumed today, after an early period of heaviness, as a result of the growing speculative belief that the midyear credit stringency will be considerably less severe than expected and that a gradual easing or credit conditions is in prospect after the turn of the month. Pools resumed operations with confidence in a select assortment of public utility, food, chain stores, automotive and electric equipment shares, a dozen of which were lifted to new high levels for the year.

Call money renewed unchanged at 7 per cent and seemed destined to stay at that figure all day despite recent intimations of bankers that the rate would go higher in midweek. While there was little in the overnight news to influence the price movement, a much more cheerful feeling regarding the market was apparent from the start of trading.

UTILITIES BOUGHT

Houses with western connections were heavy buyers of the public utilities, Pacific Lighting being marked up more than 5 points to a new high at 91¼. Pacific Gas and Electric climbed nearly 5 points to a new peak at 69⅞, and Southern California Edison moved up more than 3 points. Brooklyn Union Gas and Public Service of New Jersey advanced 5 and 4 to a new high at 205½ and 103⅝, respectively.

Concurrent strength of Childs Co., which ran up more than 6 points, and Frank G. Shattuck, which advanced more than 5 to a new top at 171¾, revived rumors of a possible merger of these restaurant chains. Royal Baking Powder, Fleischmann, Corn Products, National Dairy Products and Wesson Oil were marked up 2 to 3 points.

Electric equipment shares continued to respond to reports of rapidly growing business. Allis Chalmers jumped 9 points to a new high at 225½. Westinghouse Electric ran up nearly 7 to a new peak at 174¼ and General Electric advanced 4 points above yesterday's final quotations.

BALDWIN ADVANCES

Commercial Investment Trust jumped 9¼ points, Baldwin Locomotive advanced 3½ points on reports that a meeting of directors to act on the proposed stock split-up had been called for a week from today. International Business Machines, Columbian Carbon and Wright Aeronautical also recorded substantial gains.

There were a few soft spots. Case Threshing Machine Certificates dropped 6 points to a new low at 308. Hayes Body dropped 3 points and Gimbel Bros. sagged 1 to a new low at 31.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 20.—Unwelcome rains in the harvest region southwest led to increased buying and to early upturns of wheat prices today. There were also advices that considerable Kansas wheat had gone back 20 per cent and in lowlands would be a complete loss. Opening the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜c higher, wheat afterward scored material gains all around. Corn, oats and provisions were likewise firmer, with corn starting ⅛c off to ⅜c up and subsequently showing a general advance.

With the cutting of wheat about to become general in Oklahoma, reports that it was raining today at various points in that state gave new impetus to the buying side of the wheat market here. Meanwhile, messages were received tending to confirm assertions that Oklahoma and Kansas crops had deteriorated to a serious extent. Continued attention to the outlook for government aid and to drought possibilities Northwest counted also as incentives to buy.

In connection with reports of crop deterioration Southwest, a leading Chicago expert telegraphed today from Salina Kan., that he regarded 150,000,000 bushels yield as still possible for Kansas, but only with dry weather. He said wheat in Salina, McPherson, Reno, Kingman, Harper, Sumner, Sedgwick and Harvey counties has gone back since last Friday. Six days of high winds ripened plants prematurely and the loss was about two bushels per acre. Another prominent Chicago authority wired from Phillipsburg, Kan., that the state would produce 170,000,000 bushels of wheat.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Raw sugar was quiet early today. Prices were nominally unchanged at 3.58c for spots duty paid.

Futures opened 1 to 3 points lower with active deliveries later showing net losses of 3 to 4 points. The decline followed a renewal of liquidation by houses with trade connections, disappointing showing of the London market and inactivity in spots. Shorts and Cuban interests bought on the decline, and after the early selling subsided prices rallied. At midday prices were net unchanged to 2 points lower. The volume of business was smaller and operators appeared to be limiting fresh commitments and awaiting developments in the spot market.

The refined situation was unchanged with considerable old orders on the books of refiners to be drawn against. Prices were unchanged at 4.85c for fine granulated with seconds available at 4.80c.

Rockefeller Foundation.

During 1928 the Rockefeller Foundation disbursed from income and capital $21,690,738 in promoting the development of medical knowledge by aiding schools of medicine, nursing and hygiene, and in helping governments fight diseases and strengthen their local health services. Of the total disbursements, $12,000,000 constituted an endowment fund for the new China Medical Board, Inc. During the year the foundation and the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial were merged into a new corporation, known as The Rockefeller Foundation. Scope of the new foundation's activities was broadened to include work in the natural and social sciences and in the humanities. From this reorganization two large and well-endowed Rockefeller boards emerge: the General Education Board, with a federal charter which limits expenditures to the United States, and the Rockefeller Foundation, incorporated under the general laws of New York State. The combined resources of the new Rockefeller Foundation will be more than $203,000,000 with outstanding obligations $35,000,000. Since the inception of the four Rockefeller boards all their income has been distributed, in addition to appropriations from capital funds aggregating $225,000,000.

Coppers Rallying Slowly.

Copper shares have not responded to the good developments in the industry to the extent that many had anticipated. However, there has been buying of the leading issues by important interests who are optimistic on the outlook. Many of the outsiders who were compelled to liquidate their accounts carrying copper stocks during the sharp break last month are not being attracted into this group as easily as in the past. This explains the slow manner in which the issues have reflected the reparations settlement and other favorable factors.

Scrap Iron Prices Sag Off in East

CLEVELAND, June 20. — The Daily Metal Trade says: Prices are weaker on New York scrap. Dealers buying prices for No. 1 heavy cast is 50c lower at $10.50@11.00. Dealers are quoting foundry stove plate 25 to 50c lower at $8.25@8.50.

Leading independent sheet makers in the Chicago territory have cut down output to 75 per cent from 80 per cent.

Scrap iron and steel prices in the Chicago district continue lower. Tonnages of cast iron borings have sold at $9.75 to $10.25, off 25c from the previous level.

WEST. PUBLIC ADVANCES HERE

Buying Orders Lift Utility Issue in Local Trading; Vanadium Alloy Steel Firm

Trading was quiet, but prices were firm in the early market on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

Activities during the forenoon were confined to a comparatively few issues, with Western Public Service leading the list in point of shares turned over. This issue ran above 30 at the start of business, marking a fractional gain over the price at which it left off last night. Western Public has been enjoying a fairly strong market for several days, but, so far, has not been able to break far from the 30 level at which it has been holding for about a month. Friends of the stock, however, are confident of a move getting under way soon and point to the strength in other utilities as supporting their contention.

Suburban Electric Development was firm, but volume of dealings in the issue was smaller than in the earlier sessions this week. The stock sold "ex" the quarterly dividend of 37½ cents and an extra of 12½ cents today. Sales of the company for the first five months of 1929 were announced as $2,696,906, against $1,583,895 in the same period last year. Earnings were stated to be $136,301 for the first five months.

Vanadium Alloy Steel was strong and was quoted 77 bid at the start with the stock selling "ex" the $2 extra dividend and the regular payment of 75 cents. The last previous sale was 78½ on Tuesday.

Aside from the dealings in Western Public, the fuels here were rather dull. No noticeable changes took place in quotations and there was only a moderate turnover of stock in this department.

In the late market Lone Star Gas joined the rise in Western Public and went into new high ground for the present stock. The stock was more active than it had been for a month.

'29 CORPORATE EARNINGS TO SET RECORD

Business Prospects Bright For Last Half of Year; Optimism on Speculation

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The revival of speculative optimism is associated with a growing belief that the credit situation is again in hand.

The earlier reaction in stock prices had been technical in character and sprang from no adverse turn in the business situation. It is now apparent that corporate earnings for the first half of 1929 will set a new peak, and the bulls are taking an optimistic view of business prospects for the second half of the year. The reparations agreement in Paris cleared the air for export prospects and added a new prop of confidence to the whole economic situation.

The new speculation for the rise in stocks is based in part on a belief that the Federal Reserve authorities are satisfied with the trend of events and have abandoned plans for the raising of rediscount rates. With grain prices depressed, the system unquestionably will be concerned during the summer months with keeping down interest rates in order to facilitate the movement and the sale of crops.

TECHNICAL WEAKNESS

There is still a technical weakness in the credit situation which warrants attention. The banks are still carrying huge portfolios of bonds, which are in the nature of a more or less frozen asset. If interest rates can be held in restraint, the market for good bonds should improve, and individual banks will be in position to cut down their bond holdings, where circumstances warrant, without too great a sacrifice. More normal rates on brokers' loans will tend to interest outside lenders in becoming security buyers again.

Furthermore, a better bond market would also make it possible further to reduce brokers' loans. Arthur Reynolds, chairman of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company, was quoted as estimating that 40 per cent of current brokers' loans are used to carry bonds. Bond dealers are hoping that the mid-year reinvestment demand will help move some of the immobile issues, although the revival of the speculative spirit and the abundance of rights outstanding will doubtless tend to direct much of the midyear funds into stock instead of bond purchases.

Members of the Federal Reserve Board have indicated that so far as correction of the position of individual member banks, which are leaning heavily on the Federal Reserve system is concerned, it makes no difference whether they cut down loans or sell bonds.

APATHY BARRIER

Apathy is the great barrier to trade.

Being ignored by the public is the major sin in commerce.

Hubert T. Parson, president of the F. W. Woolworth Company, demonstrated this to manufacturers of products, whom he induced to make 10-cent sizes of their more expensive products. According to Mr. Parson, the cheaper outlet increased the public consciousness of such products, and increased the sale of the more expensive sizes.

George W. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, whose enterprise antagonized the sugar interests by advising the public to "reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet," contends that such advertising has promoted the sale of candy by calling public attention to the product. Referring to the effect of the campaign, Mr. Hill has pointed out:

It sold more cigarets, but that was only what we had expected. In addition, it taught us far more about the untouched market than we had visualized before we thought of seeking the patronage of 5,000,000 dieting women. The lesson, however, came not only from the sales of cigarets but from the sales of sweets. When candy manufacturers asserted we were hurting their markets we naturally turned to the monthly reports of the United States Department of Commerce. After our campaign had been running in the Greater New York district for six weeks we looked up the records of candy sales and found that they had increased in the Eastern states district during September, 1928, by one-tenth of one per cent over September, 1927.

INCREASES SHOWN

"The country as a whole showed an increase of 1.5 per cent, or 15 times the percentage of increase that was shown in the Eastern states territory. In October, the country as a whole showed an increase of 4.9 per cent, while the increase over the Western territory was 7.6 per cent. For December, 1928, the candy industry showed an increase of only 2 per cent over 1927, whereas in the Eastern district where our campaign was in full blast, the increase was 10.7 per cent.

"What happened is obvious enough. Five million women or thereabouts want to stay thin. But many others are trying to get fat, or at least to put on more flesh. They reached for sweets because we called attention to them. The candy consciousness of a group had been awakened so that a latent use for sweets came into life and made customers. I have no doubt whatsoever that many of those buying cigarets ignored our advice about sweets and bought candy too. If they did, it was because they wanted it and we had merely reminded them."

Young Reveals a Secret; Leaders Get Biggest Jobs

By B. C. FORBES

AN illuminating glimpse into human nature is given by Owen D. Young. He reveals that the Paris reparations conference might still be dragging along if his son had not been going to be married last week, and if an honorary college degree had not been awaiting Mr. Young this week.

The staid dignitaries of seven nations, who could not be induced to move briskly by even the most ponderous reasons of state, hustled furiously to finish their mission when their well-loved chairman revealed why he wanted to get home promptly.

This homely incident sets one a-thinking.

MORE and more of our business executives are learning that they can get more out of their workers by inspiring their friendliness than by inciting fear. Human beings in all ranks and stations of life, it is being discovered, respond better to human treatment than to inhuman treatment. The lash is proving less effective than love. Harmony yields better dividends than hate.

OUR largest enterprises no longer seek out as their chief executive a relentless driver; the million-dollar remuneration now goes to a leader. For proof, look around.

General Motors, the most profitable of all modern industrial corporations, is presided over by A. P. Sloan, who declares that he never issues an order, but that every decision is reached after the fullest discussion with everyone interested and after everyone is convinced of the wisdom of the proposed action. In fact, General Motors is the most conspicuous example America has ever had of managerial democracy. There are, so to speak, a cabinet, a senate, a house of representatives, and innumerable committees. Everybody in authority is brought into the picture and encouraged to voice his views fearlessly.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the largest employer in the world and having more assets and more stockholders than any other enterprise here or elsewhere, was for long headed by a forceful driver, Theodore, N. Vail, who, however, tried to blend a measure of democracy with his constitutional autocracy. The present head of the company is distinctly of the leader type. Walter S. Gifford is the very opposite of a swashbuckling, domineering, high-handed, order-giver.

The United States Steel Corporation has had a similar experience. Judge Gary was inherently an autocratic executive. Nobody ever dared to question the wisdom of any of his decrees. It should be added, however, that this came about partly because his associates almost always found, when they differed from him, that events proved his judgment to have been the sounder and more forward-looking.

James A. Farrell, his successor as chief executive, is of a different type. This incident reveals Farrell's make-up: He arrived at a mine one day and proceeded to the mouth of the shaft. He was stopped and told that rather dangerous conditions had developed and that he must not go down.

"Haven't you men working down there?" he asked, and told that of course there were, he immediately stepped into the cage, remarking, "If it's fit to have men down there, it's just as fit for me."

General Electric has become one of the world's very foremost industrial organizations. It's head, Owen D. Young, early won fame, not as a ruthless driver, but as a conciliator of inexhaustible patience, of unique resourcefulness, of unquestioned fairness and of infinite good humor. He always seeks to lead men, not to drive them. He attains his objective by the power of honest persuasion, not by force. And, as in the case of General Motors, the financial results are entirely satisfactory to stockholders.

The new head of Westinghouse, Andrew W. Robertson, is essentially of the Owen Young type. Trained as a lawyer, like Young, he handled business cases so successfully, usually through settling them out of court, that he was made an executive of his corporation, won the ardent loyalty of his colleagues and of the workers, greatly improved the financial results, was made president—and now he has been chosen to direct the world's second largest electric manufacturing company.

And it is significant that it is men of this stamp who are being chosen most frequently in these latter days for positions of tremendous importance.

HOW the reparations delegates were swayed by Mr. Young is thus amiably related by him:

"Our conference in Paris dragged along. About the first of June I realized that we might be spending many weeks there, and yet I did not wish to assume the arbitrary position of ordering up the George Washington or saying that I was going home on a given day. But I did say to them that on the 15th day of June my son was to be married in Cleveland, O., and that on the 17th of June I expected to be honored by a degree from Hamilton College. From that time on there was no need of my urging that committee. When small differences of opinion came some one would say, 'We must get Mr. Young home for his son's wedding; we must get him back to Hamilton College to get his degree.'"

MOST of us can learn something from that.

MARKET EXERTS STABILIZING INFLUENCE

E. H. H. Simmons Tells of Helpful Part Exchange Plays Aiding Business

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., June 20.—The New York Stock Exchange acts as the balance wheel of American credit and is a powerful stabilizing factor in American business, E. H. H. Simmons, president of the Exchange, told the convention of the Virginia Bankers' Association here today.

Mr. Simmons also warned that any attempts to regulate the actions of security markets may prove dangerous to business generally. Mr. Simmons said:

"In my own view of the matter, the most important stabilizing factor of all in American business has arisen from the fact that the United States has recently been transformed into a creditor nation.

"Capital in this country has been generated faster than it is needed with the result that American loans abroad could be made without harming our own industrial and commercial growth. Our surplus capital has enabled us to plan vast productive facilities for the future. It has softened the shock of critical situations in particular industries. In our old debtor-nation days, the collapse of certain real estate booms, which we all remember, might well have caused a national panic.

"It seems to have been the experience of creditor nations always, that the so-called business cycles operated in them with less violence than in debtor nations. It is well known that before the war, England did not have such panics and depressions as we did, and now that we have become a creditor nation ourselves, our surplus capital seems in a similar way to be cushioning on the shocks of business difficulties here.

CREDITOR NATION

"On every side in America today, thrift and saving is the order of the day. Our national government has in this movement constructively led the way, by its steady reduction of our national debt. Therefore, as a creditor nation, we can normally expect greater stability in business than we could logically look for as long as we were a debtor nation, and our demands for capital outran our ability to supply it ourselves.

"But this status of creditor nation has produced a new danger to the cause of stabilizing business, and that is what might be termed 'capital inflation.' Surplus capital must be wisely directed into productive uses, if business stability is to be maintained. In recent years, just this result has actually been accomplished by the expansion in the American securities markets.

"If our excess capital had been placed in direct commercial uses, we would have had an old-fashioned inflationary period in business upon an aggravated scale. Fortunately, the good sense of American business men has prevented this from occurring. Our surplus funds, for this and other reasons, have found a safe and salutary outlet in the securities market.

EXPANSION

"That is the basic reason for the enormous expansion of new security flotations in this country, and the frequently rising prices for standard American issues. Many people has misunderstood this expansion in the American security market. They have considered it only superficially and by itself, and this is the reason why some have been so ready to term it 'inflation' and 'over-speculation.' Actually the expansion in the American securities market has been an absolute essential to maintaining commercial and industrial stability. Any persecution or artificial restraints upon American security market expansion will at once endanger the very stability which is the motive for such dangerous experiments.

"A final factor in maintaining business stability in this country has arisen from the vast investments made during recent years in new productive facilities. The funds which have flowed into the stock market have not simply remained there. They have flowed out again and become available for building new railways, new utility plants and new manufacturing facilities.

"This steady volume of construction, amply justified by the still unexhausted natural resources of the United States, has proved a valuable back-log to business of almost all kinds.

Gulf Oil to Establish Earnings Record

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THIS year will be the biggest in the history of the Gulf Oil Corporation. Higher prices and a broader market for the company's products will make it possible for 1929 profits to greatly exceed the record established last year.

Frequently the Gulf directors have been accused of being niggardly with their stockholders, but eventually their policy will react to the benefit of the company's owners.

The organization's phenomenal growth has been made possible by the fact that in each year from one to five dollars are put back into the business for every dollar given to the stockholders. This has put Gulf into an impregnable position in the industry. The results of this persistent reinvestment of profits have not been fully reflected in earnings thus far.

Earned $8.06 in 1928.

IT IS still too early in the year to hazard an estimate of the profits but, barring a calamity in the oil business, the net figures for 1929 will be far in excess of the $36,325,140 reported for 1928. Profits last year were equivalent to $8.06 a share on the 4,504,291 shares of stock.

This was the best year in earnings the company has ever had. Previous records were broken in spite of the fact that 1928 was not a particularly good year for oil companies.

The year was much more satisfactory than 1927 when the over-production of crude oil reached an acute stage and prices were cut sharply. But 1928 was more of a year of adjustment than one of smooth sailing.

The policy of charging drilling costs to current operating expenses probably had much to do with the excellent results of 1928. Drilling operations in 1927 were extensive while production in the latter part of the year was held in check. This meant that many of the wells completed in 1927 yielded most of their returns in the following year. Net profit in 1927 was $13,707,627, or $3.08 a share, even though the company had to carry the burden of poor business conditions.

Improvements Completed.

ENORMOUS expenditures for increased production and improved facilities are adding to current profits in a substantial way. The pipe line to West Texas has been completed and the addition to the Philadelphia Refinery is also in operation.

Last year $49,600,000 was spent on new properties, plants and equipment. Besides this $5,000,000 was spent in adding to the holdings of stock in foreign marketing companies. It is the policy of continuously putting such tremendous sums into improvements that has made it possible for Gulf to report almost uninterrupted growth in its profits.

Gulf's daily average crude oil production last year, after deducting the interests of other organizations in portions of its output, was 172,300 barrels. This year's output will be vastly in excess of this.

No Change in Dividend.

HOPES that Gulf might increase its dividend rate in the near future were dashed last March when President W. L. Mellon said that the large increase in the production of crude oil of a high sulphur content in West Texas and Venezuela made necessary substantial expenditures for changes and additions to plants. "This, together with the necessity for additional marketing facilities, causes the management to believe that it is prudent to continue the policy of retaining the surplus earnings for reinvestment," he said.

Since January 1, 1923, following a split of the old stock on an eight-for-one basis, the company has been paying $1.50 a share annually. Last year the company earned its dividend requirements 5.3 times. This year the "times dividend" figures will be greater.

Obviously such a situation will not go on forever. If not this year or next year, some day the company will pass the fruits of its prudent reinvestment policy on to the stockholders. This will take place when the management feels that it has built a well rounded organization which is fortified against every contingency.

In recent years the company has been putting more money into physical properties than it has been making. In 1927 $35,000,000 of debenture 5s were sold to provide for improvements. At the end of 1928 the funded debt amounted to $65,904,000. When earnings develop to a point at which they can carry the improvement program, then it is quite probable that the patience of stockholders will be rewarded. Gulf's physical properties are valued at $464,641,697 and its assets total $614,140,731.

Street Believes Baldwin May Cut Up Shares at Coming Meet.

THOUGH Baldwin Locomotive directors apparently have nothing but customary monthly meetings ahead of them from now until late in November when action on the semi-annual common and preferred dividends is due, Wall Street is looking for possible developments in that company's affairs next week. It was reported today that the much discussed and long expected split-up of the stock may come at that time. The last time such reports were current, just before the April meeting of the board, they were denied by S. M. Vauclain, head of the company. The Street still is disposed, however, to look for something in the way of capital readjustment in view of the high price and relative inactivity of the stock which only a few years ago was one of the so-called pivotal industrial group.

Exceptional activity in Pacific Gas and Electric and also in Pacific Lighting, stocks of both these companies pushing ahead rather sensationally into new high territory, proved sufficient to set in motion rumors of an impending deal between the two. Such a development, it was contended would be logical, and might reasonably be taken, if it materializes, as indicating that big scale power and light mergers are not to be limited even immediately to the eastern half of the country. Report had it that Pacific Gas and Electric would acquire Pacific Lighting on an exchange basis favorable to the latter company.

PUBLIC UTILITIES met sufficient realizing to keep bullishness in that part of the list in check for a time following the opening. But as the day progressed this group developed renewed activity on the side of the rise in a manner which gave it a fresh hold on market leadership. Pacific coast utilities had been exceptionally strong from the outset, but bullish operations in the group as a whole were resumed following the announcement of the 10 per cent stock dividend by American Water Works. Wall Street was not of a mind, however, to accept this development as explaining entirely the remarkable rise in the stick in the last month or so. The company has split its stock several times, and has been paying smaller stock dividends right along, shareholders having received 2½ per cent in in 1927, a similar payment last year, and another early this year.

Aggressive buying of Anaconda Copper failed to stimulate the mining group as a whole to any important degree. Strength in that stock was based largely on the expectation that directors will act favorably on the matter of dividends when they meet next Tuesday to inaugurate payments on the increased common capital. In local speculative circles the belief prevails rather generally that the $7 dividend will be maintained on the larger capitalization, it being pointed out that under present conditions earnings would warrant such action. Calling of its bonds today was merely a formality, this intention having been announced coincident with the offer of additional stock to shareholders several months ago.

DESPITE the fact that the weekly trade journals continued to cite the favorable nature of conditions in the industry, and the prediction by N. A. Campbell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, that earnings of that company for the second quarter and first half year would set records, steel shares were under pressure of steady offerings. Steel journals, while reporting some reduction in backlogs, indicate the outlook is for continuation of mill operations at virtual capacity through the rest of the month. The head of Youngstown called particular attention to the fact that the company is now "beginning to realize on our investment in labor-saving machinery."

Pullman developed unusual activity and strength under the impetus of buying, which reputedly originated principally with houses having large Chicago connections. Some local buying naturally followed the strength in the stock, but demand was attributed largely to Chicago interests. Other railway equipment shares were strong, including American Locomotive, American Car and Foundry and Baldwin Locomotive. The locomotive companies have been booking substantially better business than in the last several years, and the outlook is for several more large orders. Buying of the shares of car builders is based on the belief that the railways also will be in the market for considerable new rolling stock of that character to replace worn out equipment.

Dry Bishop Caught In Bucket Shop Bankruptcy

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—In the investigation into the bankruptcy of the alleged bucket shop of Kable & Co., it was revealed today that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South and a leading dry, was a modest "dabbler" in stocks with the defunct firm.

Photographic copies of pages from the books of the company showed Bishop Cannon traded in a variety of stocks between August 14, 1927, and April 20, 1928. At one time the bishop was carrying approximately $150,000 worth of stock and his biggest day was April 10, 1928, when he sold $75,078 worth of stocks and bought $58,353 worth. He sold out his stock April 20, 1928, but left his money in the firm.

The Habit of Saving is Essential to Success in Life

by James Rae
Secretary-Treasurer
Arbuthnot-Stephenson Co.

SOME wise philosopher has said that the habit of intelligent saving never stands alone as an isolated strong quality in any man or woman, but usually is found to be only one of many other worthwhile and commendable traits of character, which develop through life the helpful and successful citizen. The saving habit is an index pointing to the possession of other traits and characteristics, which inevitably bring the individual along the great highway that the world calls "Success in Life."

The recent election of Mr. James Rae to the Presidency of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce marks still another step in an already active and busy career. Beginning his business life with the Arbuthnot-Stephenson Company forty years ago, Mr. Rae has served in various capacities, working his way up, until now he is Director and Secretary-Treasurer of that organization—a position which demands both knowledge and practise of the principles of thrift and saving, looking ahead and preparing.

According to Mr. Rae, the saving habit points to the possession of other worthwhile characteristics. In presenting this series of editorials by Pittsburgh's leading business and professional men, the Union Savings Bank hopes to show the importance of saving in building character as well as financial independence.

More Miles From Tires.

Make your old tires help you pay for the new! It may be economy for you to buy new tires when the old ones show wear, but it's needless waste to throw the old ones away.
There are many hundreds, even thousands, of miles of service still in them—and many auto owners who have the time and mechanical ability are seeking just such as you have been throwing away.
So advertise your used tires in the Classified Ads—it's economy for you, and economy for those who come to buy.

BUGS BAER Says

Sport Clothes Are Half the Battle

NOW that summer is in the middle of everything we wish the fashion experts would wise us up on sport clothes.

Bugs Baer

We know what to wear for the opening night of Ziggy's Follies and we know what they don't wear on the stage.

But sport clothes seem to be at the mercy of the wearer.

There is no standardization of haberdashery in the suburban plateaus. We would like to get some circularized details on this subject as we have been invited out to mow the lawn on a very big estate.

We can borrow Tom Mix's hat, but it wouldn't look so well with Suzanne Lenglen's short tennis skirt. We once chased a rabbit in a red coat and an opera hat, but we got rid of them before it was the rabbit's turn to chase us.

Old golfers of the subterranean type who spend their lives trying to find oil in bunkers seem to be very fond of baggy knickerbockers of the blimp type, augmented and stressed by blazing stockings and shoes with heels on both ends.

An old hat that has been rescued from its future and a sweater garnished with patches usually complete the golfing costume of the clothiers.

There is one golf club on Long Island in which every member pays $15,000 a year dues.

But if its ragged and tattered members strayed off the course a cop would fingerprint them.

It seems to be the week-end ambition of the nibblicking octogenarians to look like a bum's brother. Appearances are so deceptive, that, after watching one of these ragbaggers trying to drop a ball into a cup, we burst into tears and dropped a dime in it.

He reciprocated by giving us 10,000 shares of Consolidated Detours, paid up and non-negotiable. This stock is so trustworthy that we are now living on the income of the margin.

Clothes may make the man in the weekly magazines. But the last time Sir Thomas Lipton invited us out for a yachting spasm all we could find was a pair of flannel trousers from a clothing estate that had been held in chancery by the months.

The only appropriate hat for this cruise was the one John D. wears when playing golf. Fortunately, we managed to borrow John Gilbert's bathrobe, and when Sir Thomas saw us he saluted the Northwest Mounted Police.

Did you ever watch a man dress for a swimming trip? He expects to catch a sensitized trout in a costume that would give the heebie-jobbers to a crow.

He wears perforated rubber boots, a Prince Albert coat from the lumberjack dynasty and a muffler around his neck that looks like a yard of bad news. He carries so much that searching his pockets would be a life of crime for a subway pickpocket.

We are going to play polo in an asparagus patch in July. We would like to know whether we should carry a mallet or a knife and fork.

Senator Copeland Should Oppose ALL Lobbying

Senator Copeland has protested against the Methodist lobby at Washington, and against the attempt of this lobby to influence the vote of United States Senators.

Senator Copeland could protest with equal justice and equal effect against the attempt of any lobby to influence the vote of Congressmen or influence the action of any department of government.

In fact, Senator Copeland would confer a benefit upon the nation if he would broaden the scope of his protest, widen the sphere of his activity, and try to make lobbying of any kind a criminal offense.

There is, of course, no objection to any honest, public endeavor to influence public opinion, and so to affect the action of the representatives of the people in Congress and in the government.

But the effort on the part of special interests to influence the action of the people's representatives secretly and insidiously is a crime against democracy and should be punishable as such.

It might be a little difficult for the Senate of the United States at the moment to protest convincingly against the evils of the lobby at Washington when they have but recently confirmed the appointment of one of the most conspicuous lobbyists of one of the most offensive trusts to an important judicial position.

But Senator Copeland would have rights on his side in a crusade against lobbying and lobbyists of all kinds.

He would have the support of the press and of the public and eventually his crusade would succeed.

This government of ours is drifting away from democracy.

The power of special interests is becoming greater every day in the government.

Great industrial corporations determine our tariff schedules.

And even our sumptuary legislation is largely controlled by special interests, who think that their preferences and prejudices are of more importance than the preservation of the democratic principles on which this nation is founded.

Most of these undemocratic and un-American influences operate through a lobby.

If the lobby were eliminated by law these special interests would have to make public appeal to Congress and to the United States government, and would have to argue their case openly and honestly before the great body of the American people.

That public method is the only way in which the rights of the people can consistently be maintained, and the spirit of our republican form of government preserved.

Just Two Little Boys

But They May be Important.

"PLAYING HORSE"

These little English boys look like any other little English boys. Good, solid, sensible shoes, heavy socks, well made overcoats and caps. They are "playing horse," the younger boy running the risk of damaging his brother's coat.

The interesting thing about them is that their names are the Hon. Gerald and the Hon. George Lascelles. And their grandfather is King George of England.

That does not mean much in our day, for the English King has little power, being limited to doing what the House of Commons tells him to do.

However, you cannot tell. Either of these boys MIGHT be King of England, if others nearer to the inheritance should die off.

And while the King amounts to little in ordinary life, he amounts to a great deal if war comes.

Any king might be the CAUSE of a war, however feeble he might be in dealing with it when it came.

That makes these little boys interesting, to say nothing of the fact that their mother, Princess Mary, is a sensible, charming young woman, and their grandfather, King George, a man who has done his duty well, conscientiously putting the welfare of his people ahead of his own pleasures or whims.

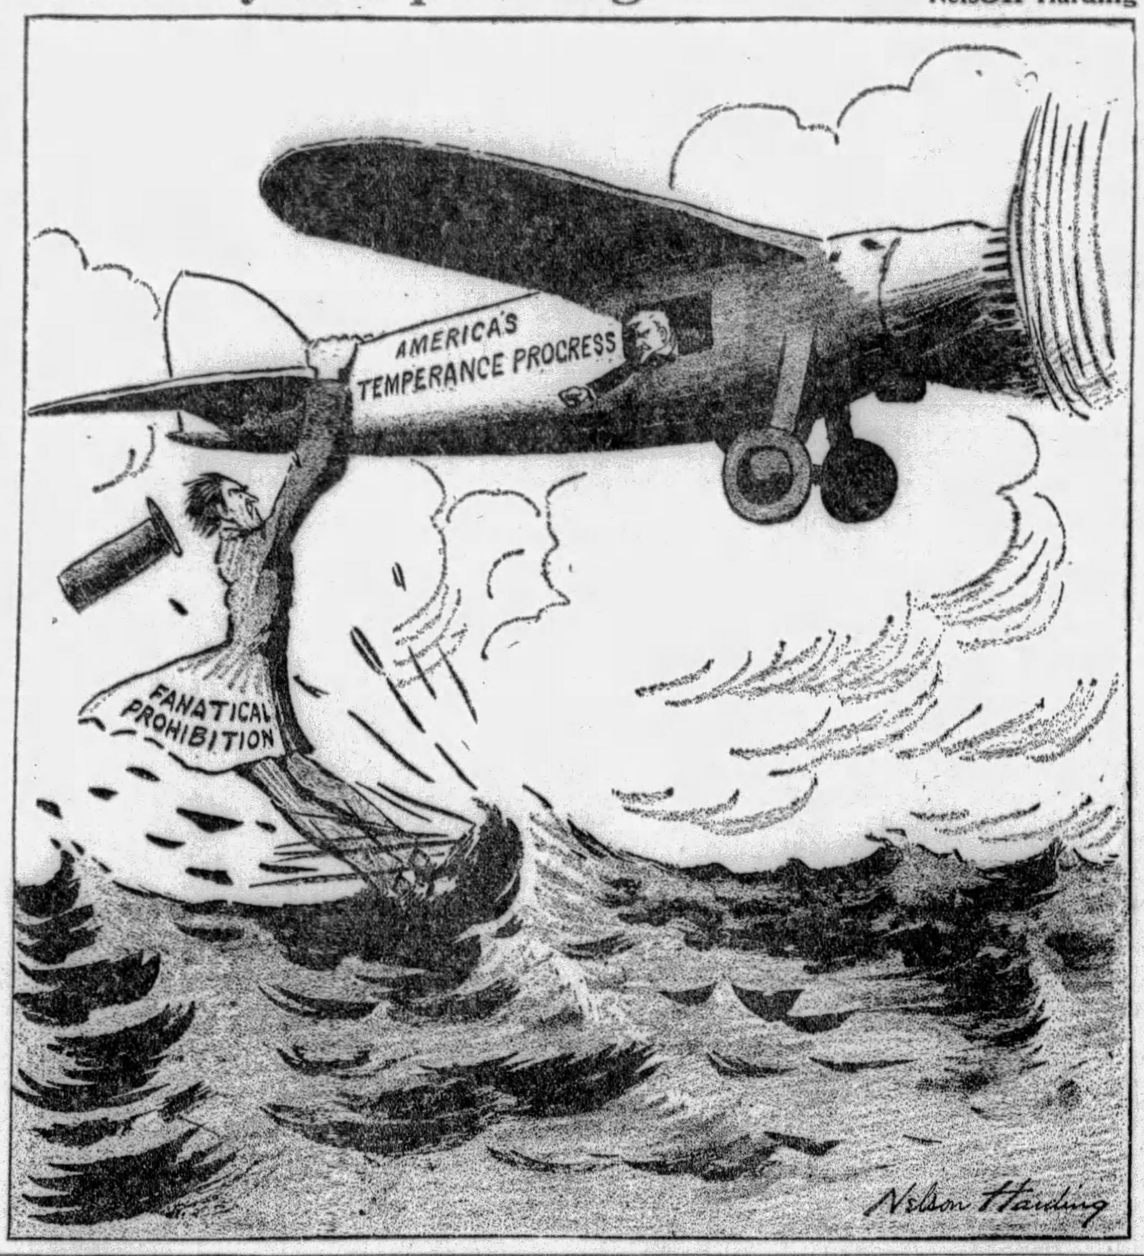
Stowaway Hampers Flight! -:- Drawn by Nelson Harding



Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

MRS. ALLEN was a general nuisance until she decided to be selfish. Then she became one of the most charming and helpful people imaginable.

Before she decided to be selfish Mrs. Allen made a fetish of unselfishness.

She was one of those mothers who sit up long after everyone else is in bed and mop the kitchen floor. Then tell about it the next morning. With tears.

She was always "working her fingers to the bone" for someone—and then suffering frightfully because her efforts weren't appreciated.

Strangers, meeting her for the first time, couldn't understand how her family could treat the dear little woman the way they did. There are two boys and a girl in the family, and they all work. Like most young folks, they go out nearly every evening. Mrs. Allen would have liked to have gone out with them—but they never took her. So she would sit at home, in her faded kitchen dress, darning their stockings and crying softly to herself as she thought how good other children were to their mothers and how unkind hers were.

You would have thought her husband would have sympathized, but he seemed as cold-blooded as the rest. Sometimes he would look up from his paper and pipe and grunt—but that was all the interest he showed.

And sometimes he put his hat on and went out and she was left entirely alone. It was a pitiful picture. Strangers always pitied her a lot. But after they had known her for a while they were apt to cool off a bit. Of course, it was terrible to see such a fine woman treated that way, but somehow—

Then one day Mrs. Allen got mad. She decided that unselfishness didn't pay. She said she'd show them! So that afternoon she went downtown and bought herself a new outfit. She didn't hurry home and prepare an elaborate meal as usual. Instead she scrambled some eggs, opened a can of corn and told the family to help themselves. Then she stacked the dishes, put on her new clothes and went out to the movies alone.

From that day on Mrs. Allen has been a knockout with her family. She no longer "works her fingers to the bone" and cries about it afterward. She laughingly boasts that she has become selfish. She insists upon sufficient rest, amusement and service to keep herself good natured. And the family appreciates her "selfish" good nature a thousand times more than they did her "unselfish" tears.

Martyrs used to go over big, but they do so no longer. We realize now that it is each human's duty to keep himself cheerful, companionable and generally fit, and that no amount of gloomy service can compensate for a lack of these qualities.

FROM RAGS TO RICHES

By Herbert Kaufman

IN 1915, a since illustrious film director offered to purchase the rights to Ralph Connor's "Sky Pilot," explaining that his company had just added an AVIATOR to its personnel.

And if George Doran has meanwhile recovered the equanimity he lost on that occasion, he will corroborate the writer's accuracy.

In 1919, Secretary Lane invited the Grand Seneschals of Hollywood to co-operate with the government in a projected citizenship campaign.

The choicest incident of the conference was the suggestion that Richard Harding Davis' "Soldiers of Fortune" should immediately be placed in production as the IDEAL Americanization picture.

These tattle-tale notes from a mental diary are not broadcast with intent to spotlight any literary deficiencies of our first cinema families, but rather to signify the general INEXPERIENCE which handicapped a great industry's "rise from rags to riches."

LESS than 20 years intervene between the Nickelodeon and the Paramount Building. And in that eye-wink, a scattering of poor men, totally unversed in the fundamentals of management—without the slightest previous contact with big business—have promoted and kept continuous CONTROL of a multi-billion dollar enterprise.

They evolved symmetrically—without design or preparatory training. They followed Necessity's cow-trails, not surveyed paths. They built skyscraping ramshackles, tacking on rooms and floors as pressure required them.

THEY learned all the "hows" long before they knew the "whys."

They had no commissary of ideas, but haphazardly made hand-to-mouth provision as they fumbled along.

They emerged from cubby-hole shops, cheap amusement parlors—dropped make-up sticks and cloth sponges, to become captains of opportunity.

Greenhorns, called to high command—half of 'em still thinking with immigrant accents—but men of Destiny—therefore, self-sufficient.

THEY found a waif possibility tramping the roads with carnivals and finaling vaudeville programs, and clothed Edison's neglected brain child in silks and satins, bestowed a kingdom upon the derelict, and summoned art, literature, architecture and WALL STREET to its service.

If they have needlessly wasted energy on unpracticalities and experiment—if the sparrows have waxed fat on the spills of their tills—dividend records testify that their judgment rang the bull's-eye nine times oftener than it missed the mark.

And neither the railroad nor automobile can equal THAT score.

They may not all speak the King's English to the Queen's taste, but Schools of Success and Achievement have conferred more degrees upon them than the late William Cullen Kemp wore.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 20.—Greenwich Village, fed up on its circusy, street carnival role, has definitely gone high-brow. The waffle parlors and coffee shops wit their "prop" long haired and deep thinking paleo-meditationists and such have about completely played out.

The Village no longer boasts of "characters" such as Tiny Tim and his "soul candy," Grace Godwin and her tea garret, Bobbie Edwards and his cigar box uke, Guido Bruno and his book attic and Sonia, the cigaret girl. The Great Unwashed who fattened on slummers also have pulled up stakes.

The declasse brown stone fronts with tiny yards and flagstones which fringed the Village have been routed out for the erection of mammoth apartment buildings with elegant marquees and gold-braided doormen. The gray streets no longer ring with songs of hungry troubadours.

The newcomers are the sort who loll in imported limousines and are not interested in dining in candle-sputtering studios, prowling around tumble-down book shops or mingling with shaggy poets. They have done all that on the real Left Bank atmosphere of Paris.

Most of the dens have expired, only a few linger. A faint Latin Quarter manner remains, but generally the cafes are brighter and serve better food. Shops are smarter. Barney Gallant, whose Village night club once catered to villagers, now reserves its best tables for uptown swells.

Little alley theaters with O, the-Pity-of-it dramas, are now turning to intimate revues and smart boudoir plays that are not only katish but even gunh-huh. The Village is this Fall to have two Park-Avenue-smart restaurants with all French menus.

Even the cinema has turned snooty. The Theater Guild movie house, for instance, on Eighth avenue, shows no rowdy films whatever. All deep stuff. The entrance is as blank as Harpo Marx's pan. You have to know exactly where it is and be somebody or you do not get in.

Only the Childs name remains with the famous chain of restaurants. The members of the family were given the ozone by majority stockholders some time back. They had built up a great business serving well cooked food in clean surroundings at reasonable prices. But they got out of step with the times and tried to foist a few faddists ideas on the public. For a time one could not acquire meat dishes because of the founder's vegetarian hobbies and there was a period, too, when no water was served with meals unless specially requested. Better dinners at better prices arrived and the Childs places were almost deserted. The new management has done away with all the fumiddidles and business booms again. The chain also received a black eye with the public for permitting one or two of their establishments to become the night haunts of pathological pansies. That has been spiked.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

A MAN was having a fight with his wife about her health.

"You won't go to a good doctor when I want you to!" he says.

"Why, John, I've never gone to anything but a good doctor. How can you say that?"

"You know very well that's a bum doctor, and you go to her just because she is a woman. Why don't you go to a good man doctor and get well?"

"Now, John, I've told you before that a man doctor can't understand women patients. Why my doctor understands everything. Last time I was there, she said, 'Now, Mrs. Jones, you are a shade pale, you know, and a little thin. You can't be too careful. I'd avoid the bright reds this season, and wear a little quieter colors.' Now, how could a man doctor ever give advice like that?"

Senator Copeland and The Methodist 'Lobby'

A "rasslin'" match is suggested, but not expected, to settle the truth of Senator Royal S. Copeland's charge that Mr. Deets Pickett, as a member of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, tried two years ago to influence his vote on a prohibition bill. But the press takes the charge seriously and wrestles strongly with the subject of church interference in politics. It must be first set down, however, that Senator Copeland's charge is promptly denied by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board, and the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle comments that the Senator's indignation "would have carried more weight if it had been expressed at the time when the Senator saw a chance to make a little political capital by keeping quiet." His provocation, imagines the New York Christian Advocate (Methodist), "was the result of the accumulated pressure of the repeated irritations which unavoidably attended the support of the Democratic candidates in the recent Presidential campaign and which eventually overtaxed all the safety devices with which a prudent politician surrounds himself."

To keep things in their proper sequence, Senator Copeland, in a public letter published far and wide, records his amazement at learning, he says, that the board's official journal had boasted that it had corralled his vote on a prohibition bill. "The man who visited my office," he writes, "represented himself as coming from the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church. He came to see me, he said, to ask me 'as a Methodist to vote for the pending closure bill.' He was plainly and openly a lobbyist. In my opinion he was seeking in an improper manner to gain the vote of a Senator of the United States Senate." Senator Copeland recites:

"I have been greatly concerned for years over what I regard to be an improper activity, the work at Washington of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church, in its manifest efforts to dictate and control legislation. I disapprove this.

"That, as I view it, is not the function of the Methodist Church. Our traditional attitude has been one of rebellion against ecclesiastical interference with the state. Yet we are doing exactly what we have demanded shall not be done by the Catholics.

"Had that branch of the Christian Church erected a building adjoining the Capitol, there would have been vehement denunciation from every Methodist pulpit. As I see it, we cannot afford to do what we are unwilling for others to do."

"We have no lobby here; we have no lobbyist. All the funds of our board are budgeted," replies Dr. Wilson in a letter which receives as much publicity as that of Senator Copeland. Dr. Wilson also repudiates responsibility for the story which got to Senator Copeland's ears that the board had said it had influenced his vote, and it is recited:

"The exact facts are that two years ago we became very greatly interested in getting the reorganization bill passed, and that one of our representatives called up Senator Copeland on the telephone and said, 'I want to come over and see you.'

"The reply was: 'What do you want to see me about?'

"'About this closure resolution coming up at 1 o'clock.'

"'What do you want me to do about it?' the Senator asked.

"'You ought to vote for it,' was the reply.

"Senator Copeland said: 'Come on over.'

"In that interview the Senator explained that he was not in favor of the Volstead law, but was in favor of law enforcement and said, 'I will vote for the closure resolution and for the bill.'

"Mr. Pickett then suggested the propriety of his publishing that fact, and the Senator requested that it be done.

"The paragraph in The Voice describing his position was exactly what he wished published to our constituency at that time, and, without any special interest in the political reasons for that publication, we did it as an act of justice to the Senator in view of his position and vote."

As to Senator Copeland's statement that if the Catholics were to put up a building as the Methodists have done, every Methodist pulpit would denounce it, Dr. Wilson replies that it is false, and goes on:

"The Catholic Church has long had a headquarters here, from which they have no hesitancy in conferring with Senators and other government officials, and not a Methodist pulpit in the land has made any special protest against that right.

"When Senator Copeland says that every one would protest, he knows that the Catholic Church has such a headquarters, and he knows that the Methodists do not protest."

However, the New York World remarks that "for years it has been an admitted fact that the Methodist Board has taken a direct and active part in politics, that it has specifically indorsed certain candidates as opposed to other candidates, that it has raised and spent money to further its purposes in political campaigns, and that it has openly lobbied for and against legislation in Congress." Furthermore, we read:

"The various political maneuvers of the board, its frequent attempts to dictate party platforms, its cheap flings at men in public life to whose policies it found itself opposed, its numerous offenses against good manners and good taste; all this has been permitted to take place with scarcely a protest forceful enough to reach the press or the public. It may be that the faction within the church which must have found this drift of events alarming lacked means to voice its opposition. It seems more likely that such groups of dissidents merely held their peace, like Senator Copeland, lest their criticism recoil somehow to the injury of the church.

"If this is true, then Senator Copeland's demand that 'this business end' may hearten whatever opposition exists within the church to the policies of the Methodist Board in Washington, and bring that opposition to the surface. We hope so. For in the policies of the Methodist Board in Washington is confusion and deep trouble. Only a misguided sense of loyalty or a mistaken sense of duty can permanently lash a great religious body like the Methodist Church to the wheel of a frivolous, mischievous and intolerant lobby."

Senator Copeland has said something, in the opinion of the New Haven Journal-Courier, "which has been felt by hundreds of thousands of American citizens, who, while not experiencing the pressure of church policies, have regretted profoundly that in this great controversy over governmental methods of control they have been forced to witness the house of God descending to the practices of the professional politician."

But all this talk of the Methodist building being a palace on the one hand or "a hatchery of cheap politics and intrigue on the other" is childish, declares The Central Christian Advocate (Methodist), which says that no individual is authorized to speak for the Methodist Episcopal Church or the Board, that when it desires to go on record it "does so as a corporate body and not as a ukase by an individual." Then this Advocate goes on sternly:

"The liquor traffic, still crawling across the threshold of our homes, corrupting all it crawls across, utterly devoid of conscience or remorse, is the python we are at grips with. We do not approach it with bouquets, but with enforcement legislation and penal sentences and plain words. We intend to strike it. We intend to do our part to kill it as the Constitution of the United States demands.

"Why should our friend, the Senator from New York, himself a health expert, a leader of millions, in pleading for the health of the American people, in the presence of this enemy of health, this enemy of all good, declare: 'If I had my way, this imposing building would be razed stone by stone, for it is the symbol of sinister forces that if allowed to go on will end in the destruction of the Methodist Church'?

"Should the Methodist Church cease to speak out on this deadly python crawling into our courts, our politics, our social order, and up the pillars on which rest the very existence of the state, and let events take their course, she would become, by her silence, responsible for the ever-increasing effrontery with which the world's greatest curse defies every attempt to cast it out and banish it from the world."

The inclusion of the name of the Roman Catholic Church in the controversy brings a reply from Patrick J. Ward, director of the Bureau of Publicity and Information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, who says, we read in an Associated Press dispatch:

"There is no similarity between these two organizations. The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals is in party politics. It supports or opposes candidates for public office according to their acceptability or non-acceptability to the Methodist Church.

"Its purposes are political.

"The Catholic Church and the Catholic body in the United States has no political platform. The national Catholic Welfare Conference is not organized for any political purpose. It does not aline itself with any political party in return for party favors, or support, and it has never sought the defeat of any political candidate because of his stand on any particular piece of legislation."
